GEN. GRANT AND RICHMOND.

Beauregard Assumes Command in Alabama.

The Miserable Failure of Hood's Offensive Operations.

Sherman's Line of Conquest Clear to the Gulf.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

RICHMOND.

It is not impossible that the statement of Gov. Yates, of Illinois, in his recent public speech at Jacksonville, may prove true. "that he thought he might safely say, from some letters which he had been permitted to read, officially, that Richmond would be in our possession before the 8th of November." Gen. Grant himself, however, indulges in no flatulent prophecies.

PETERSBURGH.

Rumors have again been rife in Washington to-day of the evacuation of Petersburgh. This is a slight anticipation of what it is hoped will soon be a glorious fact.

BEAUREGARD AND THE WAR IN GEORGIA.

It is stated positively that Beauregard has taken personal command of the rebel Army of the Southwest, now in Alabama. This is not merely an inference from the language of his address of the 17th instant, on assuming command of the Middle Division of the West, in which he informs the army he comes to share their struggles and privations, and strike a blow that shall bring success to their arms, &c., but reaches the Government directly. This change could only have arisen from the conviction that Hood's operations are as miserable a failure as we know them to be. Whether Beauregard will be able to do better than Hood remains to be seen; but one thing is clear, that the offensive movement from which the rebels hoped, and Jeff. Davis promised so much, has come to nothing. Sherman is out of Georgia, it is true; but this is only because he is following up the rebels in Alabama. All the damage the railroad suffered between Chattanooga and Atlanta, it is understood, will be repaired to-morrow.

From present indications it seems to be the rebel aim to take up a front in northern or central Alabama, covering Montgomery, Mobile, etc. This practically opens up Sherman's line of conquest clear to the gulf. Considering the thrashing the rebels have got in the valley, Price's fizzle in Missouri, and the failure to dislodge our forces from Atlanta, it does not appear that the ambitious rebel campaign in favor of their Northern Copperhead sympathizers has produced any results calculated to give the smallest comfort to either wing of the party it was designed to serve.

GEN. RICKETTS IMPROVING.

It is gratifying to be able to announce that during yesterday, last night and this morning Gen. Ricketts has shown signs of improvement. He is more comfortable to-day than he has been, and his wound has not produced the unfavorable results which were much feared at first. The severe ride of forty miles in an ambulance to which Gen. Ricketts was obliged to submit, after being shot, irritated his wound so, that when he arrived in Washington he needed rest as much as medical treatment. He is now considered out of danger.

CAPTURE OF GEN. DUFFY.

Passengers who arrived here this morning on the Western train, report that last evening a body of rebel guerrillas made a descent upon some of our troops stationed six miles beyond Martinsburgh, and captured Gen. Duffy and staff. The full particulars of this affair had not reached Martinsburgh when the train left there.

GEN. WOOL IN WASHINGTON.

Maj.-Gen. John E. Wool was here to-day. His late powerful letters sustaining the Administration, and urging the reëlection of Mr. Lincoln, have attracted much attention in political circles.

VOTE OF THE NEW-YORK SOLDIERS.

The Times' correspondent, "Leo," sends the following from City Point: "A careful canvass of the votes of the soldiers from the State of New-York, belonging to the Army of the Potomac and the Army of the James, shows that seven out of ten vote for Lincoln, and eight out of ten vote for Fenton. The votes of the New-York troops have generally been taken, the ground having been very thoroughly canvassed."

WHAT IS IT?

The McClellanites, at their meeting in the Sixth Ward of this city last evening, displayed bunting with insignia so closely resembling the rebel flag, that if it be not in reality, loyal men would like to know what it is.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

GEN. SULLY'S REPORT.

The Army and Navy Gazette this week publishes a very lengthy report of Gen. Sully of his Northwest Indian campaign. He says he is perfectly satisfied of the impracticability of a road for emigrants over the route. He reports that all the country in the vicinity of Little Missouri River is broken, and forms excellent protection in every part for small bodies of Indians to torment an emigrant train; and there is certainly no safety in traveling over it until the Indians are exterminated. The Santees on the Mouse River are almost starving, and want to give themselves up.

BLOCKADE RUNNER CAPTURED.

The Navy Department has received information of the capture by the U. S. steamer Colus of the blockade runner Hope. She was built in England for Fraser, Trenholm & Co., by the celebrated ship builders Jones, Quegan & Co. She is a paddle-wheel steel steamer, 280 feet in length, 30 feet beam; has five water-tight compartments, and draws 11 feet of water. She is a powerful steamer and is reported to be one of the best and most costly vessels built for blockade-running. She flew the rebel flag at Cork. On board is a valuable assorted cargo.

DISMISSALS.

The following dismissals are announced:

Maj. John Garrett, Sixty-ninth New-York, for disobedience of orders.

Surgeon A. F. Steele, One Hundred and Seventy-sixth New-York, for absence without leave.

First Lieut. Patrick McKinna, Seventy-third New-York, sent to Blackwell's Island, for petit larceny.

First Lieut. Edmund Pendleton, Third United States Artillery, for absence without leave.

First Lieut. H. L. Pike, for desertion.

Capt. J. F. Hall, Second New-York Mounted Rifles; Lieut. Graham, Thirtieth New-York Cavalry; Lieut. Peddington, Twenty-second New-York Cavalry, all for absence without leave.

DISMISSAL REVOKED.

The dismissal of Major Ganster, Fourth Pennsylvania Volunteers, is revoked and he is honorably dismissed.

THE TRIAL OF HAMILTON, EASTEN & CO.

The trial of Hamilton, Easten & Co., of Baltimore, charged with selling goods to blockade-runners, was commenced to-day. Parson Worsley was the principal witness for the Government. The evidence was pretty much the same as that against Johnson & Sutton. After his testimony, the trial was postponed until Friday, to enable the defence to procure their witnesses.

THE SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

The subscriptions to the 7:30 loan reported to the Treasury Department on Monday and Tuesday amounted to $657,700.

THE ST. ALBAN'S RAID.

The Examination at St. Johns.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

ST. JOHNS, C. E., Tuesday, Oct. 25, 1864.

St. Johns, an ancient provincial village, two thirds populated by Canadian French, and dating its earliest settlement about the same time as Albany, New-York; is at present a grand centre of attraction, from the fact of its being the place where the examination of the St. Albans raiders is held. With a population of four thousand, which would have been greatly increased had not the terminus of steamboat navigation on Lake Champlain been removed from here some years since to Rouse's Point, it is still a considerable village and is the shore town of the district of Iberville, which includes some five counties in this vicinity.

The preliminary proceedings upon which the prisoners are to be brought up for examination commenced at the Court-house yesterday, before Hon. C. J. Coursol, of Montreal, Presiding Magistrate, Edward Carter, Clerk of the Crown for the District of Montreal, assisting. The Canadian Government have also on hand, for counsel, T. G. Johnson, Q. C., of Montreal. For our own Government, have thus far appeared, B. Devlin, of Montreal; Hon. George F. Edmunds, of Burlington; H. G. Edson, Jasper Rand, Myron Buck, E. A. Sowles, D. R. Bailey and J. H. Dewey, of St. Albans. The proceedings yesterday consisted of the identification of the prisoners and the preparation of papers. Several witnesses from St. Albans easily identified a large number of the prisoners.

The following is a complete list of the prisoners: Bennett H. Young, George Scott, Samuel Gregg, Squire Sevis, Caleb M. Wallace, Dudley Moore, Charles M. Swager, J. McGroty, James Doty, S. E. Lackey, C. P. Bruce, S. R. Collins, Marcus Spurr.

This morning a large number of witnesses from St. Albans, including the cashiers of the banks, were taken into a room where the prisoners had been all brought in for the purpose of identification. Some twenty witnesses were examined, almost all of whom identified eleven of the party as being engaged in the robbery, murder and arson at St. Albans. I was present during the examination for identification. The prisoners are all goodlooking young men; the oldest not over 27. They are of average height, jolly, and seem to have no concern about the result of the hearing. During the earlier part of the forenoon they amused themselves in their cells by singing "Annie of the Vale" and kindred melodies. The witnesses identified all of the freebooters arrested but two. Young, Wallace, Collins and others changed their positions several times, in order, it is supposed, to confuse the witnesses, but they were speedily detected. Hon. J. J. Abbott, ex-Solicitor-General, and Mr. Carr, a leading attorney of Montreal, are active in looking after the interests of the Confederates. They have retained as counsel Hon. J. Hilyard Cameron, of Toronton, who has no superior as a well-read and clear-headed practitioner in Upper Canada. In addition, the notorious Geo. N. Sanders is here, managing the rebel interests. He is looking in most prime and adipose condition. He insists that the raiders were all regularly enlisted in the Confederate service, and are of the first families in Kentucky. Capt. Young, the leader, who is recognized by several Burlington gentlemen as having been in that place on the day of the Union State Convention, is a smooth-faced young man of twenty-three, who is perpetually on the "grin," showing an amazing development of front teeth. He has a good head, and seems capable of devising just so bold and hazardous an undertaking as he has but recently completed. At the breaking out of the rebellion he had just completed his theological studies.

Sanders confidentially told an old Douglas friend of his last evening that if he had known of this affair beforehand he should have discountenanced it, because it was projected on too small a scale. He added, however, that it was but the first of a series of piratical expeditions which would be now made into the frontier States, which would result in Buffalo being in ashes, Western New-York depopulated, &c., &c.

Another of the raiders was arrested by Chief of Police Lamotte, in Montreal, last night in a room on St. Dominique-street, St. Lawrence Suburbs. He at first brandished a pair of revolvers, and threatened to shoot any one dead who should arrest him. But Chief Lamotte, with the most imperturbable coolness, easily took him into custody. He had with him $10,000 in bills of the Franklin County Bank. He reports that he received the money Saturday evening in St. Johns from a raider concealed in that town. He hired a cart to take him to Languell, where he crossed the St. Lawrence during the night in a skiff, two of the Government detectives being close upon his heels.

A hearing took place in regard to changing the place of examination to Montreal. The counsel for our Government oppose it on the ground of the additional expense to us, as well as the undue pressure which will be brought against our cause in Montreal. Judge Coursol, who is a gentleman of high standing in his profession and of noble family, being a son-in-law of Sir E. P. Tache, the Canadian Premier, has thus far conducted the hearing with great courtesy, ability and impartiality, and will doubtless do nothing that will gravely prejudice the interests of the American authorities.

Depositions are now being taken, and as soon as they are completed and the proofs of identification, &c., are returned to the Quebec Government, the Governor-General, unless other legal proceedings will intervene, will doubtless instruct Attorney-General Cartier to deliver them up to the Vermont authorities. But the general supposition here is, that the prisoners' counsel intend making a vigorous defence, and that weeks may elapse before a final decision is reached.

Sergeant Wilson, of the Montreal Water Police, left here this morning for the line, to pick up stragglers and suspicious characters.

ASHBURTON.

FROM SANTA CRUZ.

The Florida—An American Vessel Disabled.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

The Navy Department has received a communication from the Commander of the United States sloop-of-war St. Louis, dated Santa Cruz de Teneriffe, Canaries, Sept. 10. He says that on the 20th of August an American ship approached the anchorage of Fayal, making a signal of distress. I at once sent an officer and boat's crew to her relief. She proved to be the American ship Expounder, of of Boston, from Akyab, bound to Falmouth, England, for a cargo of rice. The crew had been constantly at the pumps. For three weeks they had been on an allowance of fresh water, and dependent upon having showers for a supply. On anchoring, though reported perfectly, she was subjected to an absurd quarantine of three days, in which, of course, the St. Louis was included.

The Florida arrived at Santa Cruz de Teneriffe on the 3d of August and obtained a full supply of coals and provisions, and left after staying twenty-four hours. She discharged one officer who was an invalid and one of her men, a New-Yorker, who said he was the only American in her crew.

FROM NEW-ORLEANS.

Exciting Reports.

NEW-ORLEANS, Monday, Oct. 17, }
via CAIRO, Wednesday, Oct. 26. }

Letters have been received here from prominent rebels in Richmond, stating that the archeves and other Government property were being secretly removed to Lynchburgh.

The steamer George Cromwell, from New-York, arrived yesterday.

The rebel cavalry are conscripting negroes on the plantations outside of our lines by order of the rebel Government. They state that the negroes are to be put into the rebel army.

THE WAR IN GEORGIA.

SHERMAN PRESSING HOOD.

Beauregard's Address on Assuming Command.

Sherman Still Pressing Hood.

CINCINNATI, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

The Commercial's Nashville dispatch says: Sherman is at Gaylesville, near Cook River, pressing Hood, who is retreating toward Gadsden. Hood will be compelled either to move north to the Tennessee River, or south to Jacksonville. His army is reported to be destitute of shoes and food. The railroad from Chattanooga to Atlanta will be completed by Thursday.

From Chattanooga.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

The Bulletin has the following special dispatch:

CHATTANOOGA, Tuesday, Oct. 25.

Advices received here announce the capture of Capt. McManus, of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Regiment, a citizen of Reading, and of Capt. Hale, of the Eighteenth Pennsylvania Regiment, while on the way from the front to this place. Both are excellent officers.

Yesterday a party of a thousand prisoners came in from Atlanta, where they have been since the taking of that place.

BEAUREGARD IN THE FIELD.

His Address to the Army and to the People of the Military Division of the West.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

The following address of Beauregard, on assuming command of the Army of the West, has been received at the War Department:

[Copy.]

HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE }
WEST, Oct. 17, 1864. }

In assuming command at this critical juncture of the Military Division of the West, I appeal to my countrymen of all classes and sections for their generous support and confidence. In assigning me to this responsible position, the President of the Confederate States has extended to me the assurance of his earnest support. The Executives of your States meet me with similar expressions of their devotion to our cause. The noble army in the field, composed of brave men and gallant officers, are strangers to me, and I know that they will do all that patriots can achieve. The history of the past, written in the blood of their comrades, but foreshadows the glorious future which lies before them. Inspired by these bright promises of success, I make this appeal to the men and women of my country to lend me the aid of their earnest and cordial coöperation. Unable to join in the bloody conflicts of the field, they can do much to strengthen our cause, fill up our ranks, encourage our soldiers, inspire confidence, dispel gloom, and thus hasten on the day of our final success and deliverance.

The army of Sherman still defiantly holds Atlanta. He can and must be driven from it. It is only for the good people of Georgia and the surrounding States to speak the word, and the work is done. We have abundant provisions. There are men enough in the country liable to and able for service to accomplish this result. To all such I earnestly appeal to report promptly to their respective commands, and let those who cannot go see to it that none remain who are able to strike a blow in this critical and decisive hour. To those soldiers, if any, who are absent from their commands without leave, I appeal in the name of their brave comrades, with whom they have in the past so often shared the privations of the camp and the dangers of the battle-field, to return at once to their duty. To all such as shall report to their respective commands, in response to this appeal, within the next thirty days, an amnesty is hereby granted. My appeal is to every one, of all classes and conditions, to come forward freely, cheerfully and with good heart to the work that lies before us.

My countrymen—respond to this call as you have done in days that have passed, and with the blessing of a kind and overruling Providence, the enemy shall be driven from your soil. The security of your wives and daughters from the insults and outrages of a brutal foe shall be established soon, and be followed by a permanent and honorable peace. The claims of home and country, wife and children, uniting with the demands of honor and patriotism, summon us to the field. We cannot, dare not, will not fail to respond. Full of hope and confidence I come to join in your struggles, sharing your privations, and with your brave and true men to strike the blow that shall bring success to our arms, triumph to our cause, and peace to our country.

G. T. BEAUREGARD, General.

Sherman's Pursuit of Hood.

Correspondence of the Chicago Journal.

NASHVILLE, Friday, Oct. 21.

Hood's army is now far down the Broomtown Valley, on the way to Jacksonville, Ala., the terminus of the Talladega and Montgomery Railroad, which, in future, is to be the base of supplies. Sherman's force passed through Dirttown yesterday in pursuit; but how far he can go I cannot conjecture. He can obtain all the forage he wants for his horses and mules, and if he has sufficient wagons to carry provisions, he can move to Jacksonville without difficulty.

Hood had his whole force with him, consisting of the corps of G. D. Lee, (formerly Polk's,) Cheatham's, (late Hardee's,) and Stewart's. There are embodied in these organizations 171 regiments of infantry, averaging 150 muskets each, or 25,650 men in all. He has with his infantry forty-eight pieces of light artillery and about 800 artillerymen. In addition there are about 5,000 cavalry covering his retreat, making in all an effective force a little over 30,000, and to collect these he has drained the Gulf States—there being not 12,000 men of all arms elsewhere, between the Grand Pedee and the Mississippi. These figures are correct, or as nearly so, as they could be made, without a consultation of the regimental morning reports.

Before Dalton, which is manned by a garrison of some 600 negro troops, there were two corps; while Lee's force was kept ten miles in the rear, to watch Sherman.

Col. Johnson, commanding at Dalton, made a surrender which was disgraceful in the extreme. He could not have held the post long, it is true; but a check of three or four hours would have been invaluable to Sherman. Beside, the rebel leaders refused to recognize the negroes as prisoners of war, but offered to parole the white officers, if the place were surrendered without a fight. Hood, however, told him that if compelled to take the place, he would show no quarter. Johnson surrendered, without firing a gun, to save himself. Now when the Colonel entered the service, he knew that the rebels would not recognize the negroes as prisoners of war; and when he went into that service, he should have been resolved to take all the consequences. If he was not prepared to share the fate of his men, he should have remained at home. In deserting his negroes, and carrying them to worse than slavery, he acted the part of a coward.

Whatever may be the final result of Hood's flank movement, one thing is certain—he entirely failed in his purpose of breaking Sherman's communications to a degree that would compel the evacuation of Atlanta. Ten days from the 17th will see them all right, and trains running again from Nashville to Atlanta. The garrison at the latter place had fifty days full supplies when Hood commenced his movement to the north.

The rebel leader, owing to the situation of the country, may get his army away without a fight; but he failed to accomplish what he set out to do, and the hopes of the rebels in the East, will have vanished. Jeff. Davis' prophesy will be unfulfilled, and the despondency which the assurances given by the rebel press had partially relieved, will return with fourfold force.

Harris the rebel Governor of the State, who kept the executive government of Tennessee under a Sibley tent for a long time, has at length hidden the archives, and gone to the field as volunteer aid to Gen. Hood.

The rebel sympathizers here have lost all heart, since the elections last week; they say the game is up, and Lincoln will be elected. The intelligence of the political victories for the Union party reached Hood's army on the 16th, and I have it from one who was a prisoner, and escaped, that the leaders were even more chagrined over the defeat of McClellan than over their own failure to compel the evacuation of Atlanta.

P. S.—Sherman is pursuing Hood yet, and there are some indications of the rebels making a stand at Blue Pond. Our army is in good spirits, and all they ask is for Hood to stand and fight them.

When the rebels demanded the surrender of Resaca it was refused by Col. Weaver, of the Seventeenth Iowa, who commands the post. They sent a line of skirmishers to attack our works, and they advanced under the rallying cry of "Hurrah for McClellan." But they failed, just as Little Mac will.

The Surrender of Dalton.

From the Chattanooga Gazette, Oct. 18.

The surrender of Dalton is no longer a matter of conjecture. Col. Johnson, of the Forty-fourth Colored, surrendered that post and garrison on the 13th. As there has been a good deal said in reference to Col. Johnson's conduct by officers in this city, on lager-beer, billiard and minstrel duty, we deem it proper to depart from our usual custom by discussing, briefly, the terms of the surrender and the circumstances under which the town was turned over into the custody of rebels.

Owing to the inefficiency of the Georgia home-guard cavalry, the scouts failed to notify the Colonel commanding that an infantry force was in close proximity to Dalton, and thus the Colonel's own infantry skirmishers were the first to develop the strength of the enemy, about 1 o'clock of the 13th, when he received the following brutal order from Gen. Hood. Let officers and soldiers of the army, and the Government mark the language of the last sentence:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE TENNESSEE, }
IN THE FIELD, Oct. 13, 1864. }

To the Officer Commanding United States Forces, Dalton, Ga.:

SIR: I demand the immediate and unconditional surrender of the post under your command, and should this be acceded to, all white officers and soldiers will be paroled in a few days. If this place is carried by assault, no prisoners will be taken.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. B. HOOD, General.

Upon the receipt of this, Col. Johnson responded that he would not surrender, and skirmishing immediately ensued. Another demand was made, with an equally emphatic response. That, in the meantime, the enemy had buzzard's Roost, a division of cavalry on the Cleveland Road, and a line of battle ranging from Tunnel Hill Read to the Spring-place Road. When the skirmishers had developed the real condition of affairs, Johnson then sent one of his officers to the rebels, proposing to evacuate, if he could be satisfied that Hood had ten thousand infantry and a battery of artillery. The result of this message was an interview between Gen. Hood and Col. Johnson, in which the former coolly informed the latter that he could not return to the fort, and that he could surrender or suffer the consequences. Seeing that the enemy had two corps, with another in supporting distance, Johnson surrendered. He could not have resisted more than fifteen minutes against their artillery and infantry. When such men as Jim Steedman indorse their conduct, it is high time that gentlemen in safe places should talk less with their mouths. Col. Johnson and his officers have been paroled, and are now on their way to Nashville, to report to Gen. Thomas, when Col. Johnson will ask for an investigation. The latter has been in the war for three years, and his record does not need what we here see proper to say in his defence. Seven hundred and fifty muskets against twenty thousand men, with thirty pieces of artillery, is too much for a sensible man to carry.

The President Thanks Gen. Sheridan.

The following is a copy of a letter from the President to Gen. Sheridan, which was read on Monday to every regiment in the command:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.

To Maj.-Gen. Sheridan:

With great pleasure I tender to you and your brave army the thanks of the nation and my own personal admiration and gratitude for the month's operations in the Shenandoah Valley, and especially for the splendid work of Oct. 19. Your obedient servant,

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Unionism in New-Hampshire.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CLAREMONT, N. H., Wednesday, Oct. 26, 1864.

Immense meeting. Processions coming in from twenty miles round. Addresses of great force and power delivered by Prof. Patterson, Col. Howe, Dr. Doane and Gov. Gilmore to a gathering of 7,000 in the open air. Addresses also made in the Town Hall. The Granite Hills are echoing the shout of Lincoln and Johnson.

Republican Nominations.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

The Republicans of the Third District have nominated Alexander H. Rice for reëlection to Congress.

In the Fifth Senatorial District, Mr. W. Clapp, Jr., editor of the Gazette, has been nominated for State Senator.

Railroad Accident—Lex Talionis.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Tuesday, Oct. 25, 1864.

An accidental collision of a passenger and a freight train near Shephardsville this morning, disturbed the Louisville and Nashville railroad so that the up train was two hours and a half behind time this afternoon.

Passengers confirm the reported crossing of the Tennessee river by Forrest, below Florence, Ala., and say six rebel regiments are reported at Centerville.

On account of the capture of the Totten Hospital mail by guerrillas, under a notorious woman named Sue Mundy, and the murder of the mail carrier, four guerrillas, who called themselves Confederate Captains, all of whom were recently captured on the Cumberland River, were yesterday taken from Exchange Barracks here and shot in retaliation for the aforesaid murder.

From California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, Oct. 24.

Six more of the Arctic whaling fleet have arrived.

The steamer Sierra Nevada from Oregon and British Columbia, brings nearly $300,000 in gold.

The Legislative Assembly of Vancouver's Island has passed resolutions favoring a federal union with British Columbia.

The news from the mines is generally favorable.

The Prize Nunda.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Oct. 26.

The British prize steamer Nunda from Wilmington for Nassau, which was captured October 21 by the U. S. steamer Fort Jackson, when 180 miles from port, arrived here to-day in charge of Acting Ensign Hopkins and a prize crew. Ninety-eight shot were fired at her before she surrendered. She has a cargo of 500 bales of cotton. Thirty-five bales were thrown overboard during the chase of 5½ hours. She is a side-wheel iron steamer of 620 tons, and draws seven feet of water.

Fire on the Lake.

SARNIA, C. W., Wednesday, Oct. 26.

At about 6 o'clock this afternoon the propeller Kenosha, of the Grand Trunk Line, plying between Chicago and Sarnia, was discovered to be on fire while alongside the elevator, to save which and the neighboring buildings she was cut adrift, and is now floating down the river in full blaze. Nothing of value could be saved.

THE BATTLE OF CEDAR CREEK.

A Detailed Account of Operations During the Day—The Surprise—How it Occurred—The Skedaddle—Check—Panic Among the Non-Combatants—Arrival of Major-Gen. Sheridan—The Effect Upon the Troops—The Final Success.

[The letter of our Special Correspondent with Gen. Sheridan's army has been delayed for several days in transmission, but it will be found interesting as a graphic account of the great victory in the Valley.]

STRASBURGH, Thursday, Oct. 20, 1864.

The battle of Cedar Run, on Wednesday, Oct. 19, 1864, will be recorded in history as one of the most remarkable that has thus far taken place in this rebellion. My dispatch during the action, and letter forwarded just after nightfall, necessarily not only contained many inaccuracies as to facts, but were imperfect in other respects.

As I had unusual opportunities afforded me for witnessing the contest at different points, I therefore shall attempt a record of the whole scene, giving such additional particulars as may be recalled at this more peaceful hour, and such as have been communicated to me by others whose statements I deem reliable.

The enemy, reinforced by a portion of Longstreet's command, it was believed for several days previous to the 19th, that they were preparing to make a desperate attempt to crush the army of the Middle Military Division under the command of Maj.-Gen. Sheridan; indeed positive orders had been issued by Jeff. Davis to Early, that the Union army in the valley of Virginia must be crushed at all hazards—else the rebellion was a failure. Extensive preparations had been made to meet this terrible onslaught by the construction of earthworks at every practicable point, with the same obstructions in front; pickets were strengthened and frequent reconnoissances were made. Our line practically extended from the Little North Mountain on the right, near Snyder's Gap, southeasterly to near Front Royal, thus following the general direction and course of Cedar Creek, and protecting every avenue of approach on front or flanks. At several points the enemy "felt" our lines on the mornings of the 17th and 18th, and in one instance captured or dispersed, on the right, a squad of twenty of the First Connecticut Cavalry, under Maj. Marcy, a majority of whom subsequently escaped, and returned to camp. At about 2 o'clock A. M. Wednesday morning, the 19th inst., a similar demonstration was made on the right, and at about the same hour Averill's division, now commanded by Col. Powell, was attacked near Front Royal by a considerable force of cavalry and infantry. The firing soon ceased, and the army was not aroused from its slumbers, because the impression prevailed that the enemy were only feeling our lines. At a little later hour, not far from 4 o'clock A. M., picket firing commenced in front of the Nineteenth Corps, on the right and near the Manchester and Sharpsburgh pike; brisk at first, for a few minutes, then it almost ceased; a few minutes elapsed when firing was heard in front of Maj.-Gen. Crook's, Kanawha Corps, (sometimes called the Eighth,) advanced division, (the First, Col. Thoburn,) to the left of the pike, and half a mile more advanced than the Nineteenth Corps' front. Almost simultaneously with this rapid firing commenced along the whole line, and heavy volleys of musketry were poured in upon the left of Gen. Crook's whole command, the the Second Division of which occupied a line of works to the rear and right (nearer the pike) of the First Division. Prisoners captured during the day state that Kershaw's rebel division of infantry and one brigade of cavalry, crossed Cedar Creek at about midnight on the night of the 18th inst., at two points, the principal force being massed opposite the left of Gen. Crook's command, and very near the advanced pickets. A dense fog enveloped the whole surrounding country as if in a mantle, which enabled the enemy to make the movement unperceived. Some of the pickets allege that they were regularly relieved by rebel officers and men dressed in our uniform. Others were quietly captured, the fog being so dense that one man could not see another at a distance of ten feet. Whether these statements are wholly true or not it is not material to inquire here. No doubt the facts will be ascertained in the proper quarter, and due punishment meted out for any neglect of duty. One thing is certain; the command of Gen. Crook was taken entirely by surprise; so complete, indeed, was it, that few or no men were in the line of earthworks; in fact, they could have made but a poor defence had they been there, for a galling fire was poured in upon their flank. The panic that followed it is impossible to describe. Officers present at the time can give only a meagre account of it. They heard the whistle of innummerable bullets, the yelping of the enemy, but could not see exactly where they were, or from what point attacked. Some of the officers made an attempt to resist the attack, but the few men who participated were nothing as compared with the attacking force, and the enemy still pressed on. The fight soon merged into personal encounters within our own works, and there were many of the enemy who then and there drew their last breath. Col. Thoburn, who commanded the First Division at the extreme left of the chain of earthworks, made a futile attempt to rally his men. Each individual acted, for once, upon his own responsibility. A majority took to flight, while a few made strenuous resistance against great odds, and sold their lives dearly. Of the latter class was Lieut. Boyle (a very powerful man,) of the First Pennsylvania Artillery, who stood by his guns amidst a shower of bullets, cutting every man down who came within reach of his sword, until, finally, a rebel soldier came up from behind, and knocked his brains out with the butt of a gun. Once in possession of the left, the guns in position there were turned and used upon the camp of the Nineteenth Corps, and increased, if such a thing were possible, the confusion. This occurred just at daybreak. The guns in battery in front of the Nineteenth Corps were trailed in the direction from whence the balls seemed to come, and were rapidly fired, evidently with but little effect, so far as checking the enemy was concerned, but added to the general confusion. At this moment, I reached the works in front of the Nineteenth Corps, and never will the scene there be effaced from my memory. The members of the Kanawha Corps rushed through the Nineteenth Corps camp like wild men; the officers of the Nineteenth made frantic efforts to arrest the flight of badly scared men and animals (horses and cows, with which the troops were well supplied,) dashing through the half-formed lines, rendering the officers' duties exceedingly difficult; but in the face of a murderous flank fire several officers succeeded in getting the men into something like order, and a rapid fire was opened upon the enemy. The fog still hung like an impenetrable veil over all surrounding objects, and with shot, shell and bullets whistling and screeching through the air, the bellowing of cows, neighing of horses, interspersed with stentorian commands given by officers to men who were beyond all control, it is not to be wondered at that even the strongest-nerved man felt as if the rebellion was giving some awful death-gasps. At the height of the din a flock of birds swooped through the sulphurous smoke several times and seemed to be delighted with the turmoil.

At this time an exciting scene was transpiring a few hundred yards to the rear of the Nineteenth Corps' camp, near Gen. Sheridan's headquarters. The enemy had advanced their right rapidly, and reached the vicinity of Middleburgh, having a strong skirmish line near and almost parallel with and on the easterly side of the Winchester and Strasburgh pike, and were sending a perfect shower of missiles into the vicinity of headquarters' camp, wounding one or more men belonging to the Fourth New-York Cavalry, Maj. Schwartz, the Commanding General's body guard, the Sixth Corps' hospital camp, and acres of ground in the vicinity of headquarters, upon which trains were packed and troops were quartered. The Sixth Corps, in camp to the right and rear of the Nineteenth, was turning out as the general stampede of trains, horses, cows, panic-stricken soldiers and non-combatants took place; at this time, too, the fog increased the bewilderment of everybody. The Sixth Corps was hastily formed, and marched by the flank in divisions to the left and rear of headquarters and toward the pike, and halted in column by division. In executing this movement it was necessary to pass through the train. Some of the teamsters, more scared than others, attempted to "double up," while a few became frantic and made an effort to flank the corps; but fortunately in this movement they were promptly checked by persons in charge of the train, in which work a number of the Sixth Corps officers rendered important assistance, and prevented a panic in this department. As it was, only one of the headquarters' wagons was left behind; the Eighth Corps' wagons and ambulances and some belonging to the Nineteenth, were captured as a matter of course. The fight, such as it was, had been going on for about an hour; old Sol had just began to penetrate the fog, and the Sixth Corps formed in column by division, as before stated, just behind a roll of land near the pike, and was awaiting the onset. The enemy by this time had forced back what of the Eighth and Nineteenth Corps that obstructed their passage, and parting with some friends in the Sixth I rode aside to look at the reception awaiting the now exultant enemy, as soon as they showed themselves in front of the Sixth. All eyes and hearts were centered upon this corps, as their last hope; this gallant band of brothers, the heroes of many a hard fought field were the last reliance. Sheridan had been called away two days before to Washington; he had not yet returned, and the crisis had come, when, in a few minutes would be decided the fate of this army and possibly the campaign. The enemy were exultant; they had captured 21 pieces of artillery, several hundred prisoners, a score or more of wagons and ambulances, and a retreating and partially demoralized enemy was flying before them. Imagine with what impetuosity they moved up the rise of ground in their advance directly in front of the Sixth Corps. Early, who was in command of the rebels, it may well be surmised by this time had sent off a dispatch to Jeff. Davis communicating the glorious news: "The enemy's works on Cedar Creek have been carried by storm." "21 guns (perhaps, failing to count, he ought have said 45) captured, several thousand prisoners captured, (he will correct his report to-day by saying hundreds, if he is an honest man!) and "ambulances and army wagons without number;" "fearful slaughter of the enemy," &c., &c., &c. What could a single corps, numbering perhaps 12,000 fighting men, expect to do, in front of such a foe, 30,000 strong, under the circumstances? What they did do history will record to their credit; and the enemies of the Union will long have cause to remember the fact. The Sixth at first checked the onward march of the enemy—the enemy rallied, and with cheers made a terrible onset, when the First Division gave way, and the Second, under the gallant Getty, met them with sheet after sheet of lead, and charged the haughty foe. The slaughter was appalling; the enemy's triumphant march through our camps had been checked, giving the Nineteenth time to reform, as well as a portion of the Eighth Corps. This accomplished, the Sixth gradually retired to a new position. While the Sixth moved into position, Gen. Torbert sent the First Division of cavalry, Gen. Merritt, to look after the left flank—the enemy at Front Royal having been held by the Second Division, Col. Powell. A portion of the Second Brigade of this division, Gen. Devin, was detailed as provost-guard to stop stragglers. It is stated by officers who were there, that the stragglers began to arrive in Winchester at about 8 o'clock A. M.—a distance of thirteen miles. There was obviously a necessity for reliable troops in the rear. Such determined stragglers were never seen before. The Third Division, at first on the right, was subsequently sent to the left—the enemy having threatened that flank by Kershaw's Division and some cavalry. On the right, Custer's Cavalry, the Third Division, protected the flank for a while against Rosser's (rebel) Cavalry, when he too was ordered to the left to resist what appeared to be, and in fact was, an effort to turn our left. The enemy had tried our centre, and were met by the Sixth Corps; he had tried our right, and was met by the Nineteenth Corps and Custer's Cavalry; he was now trying our left, and had been repulsed. Notwithstanding this, the men, starting out of camp, (all except the Sixth Corps and cavalry,) leaving tents and camp equipage behind, were dispirited, and there was a feeling of despondency; even the veterans of the Sixth commenced dropping out. The hour of 10 o'clock had arrived, and Winchester, to outsiders, seemed to be the only halting place, when all of a sudden—no man present will ever forget the moment—cheers were heard in the rear! What was it? queried every one; reinforcements? No. Cheer after cheer filled the air, and all eyes were turned to the rear. Stragglers were seen to turn about and move to the front as if danger threatened them. The mystery was speedily solved: "Glorious Phil. Sheridan," as the soldiers call him, mounted on a favorite horse, now almost jaded, hove in sight, and hearing of the contest, he started from Winchester, with an escort of 275 men, and when first seen near the field he had less than thirty men with him, so rapidly had he traveled. Riding through the fields to the left of the pike he passed along in front of the Sixth and Nineteenth corps. Such cheering, such wild enthusiasm I never heard or had any conception of before. Talk of popular favorites—Sheridan was the most popular man in the world at that moment; his presence inspired confidence more than what he said. Riding along the line, recognizing the greeting he received by waving his hat, he uttered modest words of encouragement and good cheer. Hundreds of eyes, unused to the melting mood, were dimmed with tears at that moment, and all thanked God for the return of Gen. Sheridan. This should not be considered as any disparagement to Gen. Wright, who, up to this time, had been in command; he, personally, had been vigilant and active, but circumstances were against us, and at the right moment the real Commander arrived. A man not grateful for such a welcome would be less than human—his heart must be stone. Gen. Sheridan did appreciate, not only the situation, but, if never before, the love the troops under his command have for him. It was a period of triumph—a point in a man's career when the object of life had culminated; all other honors which mere officials can confer would not weigh in the balance with that one triumph. Love, adoration, safety—all expressed in shouts and huzzas. God only knows how individuals prayed for the arrival of the hero of Virginia Valley. Their prayers were answered. Mark the effect! The enemy had been checked before his arrival, but our flanks were still threatened. We were just holding our own. Taylor's battery (B and L) of the First

NEW BOOKS.

ESSAYS ON SOCIAL SUBJECTS. From the Saturday Review. 12mo. Boston: TICKNOR & FIELDS.

It is a little remarkable that the present hard-headed and matter-of-fact age, should have witnessed the resurrection of that older type of desultory literature, the Essay, in which, with an easy familiarity reminding one of the Spectator and Tattler days—the author discusses some topic generally of manners, minor morals, or any subject of temporary conventional interest. The writers of the Saturday Review were among the most potent agents of this revival, and the volume before us contains some of its best specimens. There is the charm of intercourse with an intelligent and well-bred gentleman to be derived from every page of it, rather than the impression made by great thoughts nobly expressed. The writer rather comments upon views and sophisms than advocates them. His philosophy does not go deeper than the ordinary man of the world's view.

AMERICAN JOURNAL OF SCIENCE AND ARTS, September, 1864, New-Haven.

This valuable periodical appears promptly with the month. Prof. W. E. EVANS, of Marietta College, contributes an interesting paper on the Action of Oil Wells. He thinks it certain that the principal supplies of petroleum are not diffused between the planes of stratification, but are collected in cavities more or less sunken in the strata, whence it is less liable to be carried away by running water. Prof. E. B. ANDREWS showed, in an article published in the Journal, July, 1861, that it is common to find large quantities in places where there are marks of disturbance and displacement of the rocks. Prof. EVANS thinks that the cavities have probably been caused sometimes by uplifts and sometimes by erosion and the dissolving action of water; but whatever may be their origin, he says, that they are not usually of great horizontal extent. He states that it is seldom that two neighboring wells strike oil at the same depth, whether the strata be horizontal or dipping. That it is one chance out of many to strike oil at all, even in neighborhoods where it exists in abundance. The drill, as it enters the cavity, sinks variously from four or five inches to as many feet, sometimes sticking fast, as if between the oblique sides of a narrow fissure. But there are facts connected with the history of oil wells, particularly their intermittent action and their interference with one another, which serve to show the existence, in many cases, of systems of these cavities connected together by channels of communication more or less free, running sometimes along the strata and sometimes across them. The productiveness of a well, the Professor remarks, depends on its entering either one of the main reservoirs, or some of its important connections. Many other curious facts, which will attract the attention of those who are interested in these oil wells, are mentioned in the course of this paper. Prof. B. SILLIMAN, Jr., sums up briefly some facts which he has gathered regarding the new Almaden Quicksilver Mines, during his visit to the Pacific Coast. Among the other articles of general interest which are contained in this number of the Journal are the following: "Barometric Indications of a Resisting Aether," by PLINY EARL CHASE; G. W. HOUGH on "Cataloguing and Charting Stars; H. GIBBONS on "Springs and Streams in California," &c. In the miscellaneous scientific intelligence we note the important announcement of the discovery in the High Sierra of a peak which it is supposed will overtop Mt. Shasta itself. Prof. BREWER, who makes this announcement, reports that Mr. KING, who is assisting in the geological survey of California now in progress, on July 6 ascended a peak over 14,000 feet high, and from it observed five more peaks, equaling it in altitude, and two even still more lofty. The highest of these Mr. KING started to attempt to reach about July 6, and the scientific world will look with interest for the result of his exploration. These grand elevations lie between the heads of King's and Kern Rivers, somewhat north of the end of Owen's Lake.

LIFE OF JEAN PAUL FREDERIC RICHTER. Compiled from various sources, preceded by his Autobiography. By ELIZA BUCKMINSTER LEE. Third edition, 12mo. Boston: TICKNOR & FIELDS.

This tasteful volume forms a companion to, and, indeed, is an indispensable portion of TICKNOR & FIELDS' elegant edition of JEAN PAUL'S writings in English, an enterprise that we are happy to see is proceeding successfully, to judge from the best evidence that can be given—the continued appearance of new volumes. Twenty-two years ago Mrs. LEE first offered doubtfully to the reading world a Life of RICHTER. His name was then suggestive of but few associations to the English reader, the world of fine thoughts and glowing emotions that his works offer was a sealed book to most. Gradually, through the exertions of CARLYLE and others, the veil was lifted, and thousands gladly drew inspiration from their pure founts. Every increase of knowledge about the man only tended to add to the appreciation of Mrs. LEE'S memoir, and it has now an allotted place of honor, from whence there is no likelihood of its removal. A noble head of RICHTER accompanies the volume, and is enough of itself to cause a desire for intimacy with its contents.

LINDISFARN CHASE—A Novel, by T. ADOLPHUS TROLLOPE. 8vo. New-York.

In his present work Mr. T. A. TROLLOPE, deserting the scenes and characters rendered familiar to him by a long residence in Italy and reproduced in his former novels, introduces his readers to a quiet English circle of society, such as is found nestling under the shadow of a cathedral in a provincial town near the Southern coast. The resemblance of the locality to those, so often selected for description by namesake and relative, Mr. ANTHONY TROLLOPE, will strike every one, and the clerical status of several of the dramatis personæ also contributes to the general similarity between the works of the two writers. There are, however, essential points of difference growing out of these separate individualities, easily recognizable, though "Lindisfarn Chase" relates to the fortunes of two young ladies, who may claim the name of heroines. As a delineator of English girlhood, Mr. ANTHONY TROLLOPE ranks far above his brother, and, indeed, every novelist of the day. Mr. T. ADOLPHUS TROLLOPE, on the other hand, excels in description, and the true character and expression of English scenery is very cleverly conveyed in many well-written passages of his book. It must not, however, be supposed from this that the elements of a human interest are wanting to his work. The plot is well developed, showing a more careful constructive skill in its arrangement than is now often met with. The incidents turn on the embarrassments arising from the sudden appearance of unexpected claimants to property, and the chain of events by which in the end justice is done to all. The dialogue is spirited and vivacious, and the entire book is free from the taste for the sordid details of the lower strata of English life that often comes out unpleasantly in ANTHONY TROLLOPE'S books. His brother bids fair to prove a formidable rival.

SHERIDAN'S VICTORY.

Gen. Custer upon Peace Propositions.

Gen. CUSTER, the well-known cavalry leader, has written a letter upon the Peace party, which has the ring of the true metal. We make the following extract:

"I am a peace man, in favor of an 'armistice' and of sending 'Peace Commissioners.' I desire an honorable and lasting peace. Such a peace can only be secured by the acknowledgment of our Government, supreme and entire. It must embrace all the States, and must possess self-sustaining powers; in other words, the decisions of the General Government, as affecting individual States, must, in all matters of national concern, be final, admitting of no appeal. The Peace Commissioners I am in favor of are those sent from the cannon's mouth. The only armistice I would yield to would be that forced by the points of our bayonets, whose object would be to afford the opportunity for an unconditional recognition of the supremacy of the Federal Government. This appeal must first come from the rebels; otherwise it will be a practical admission on our part that we are the vanquished party. To me it seems like madness to think of proposing an armistice, particularly at the present time, when success is everywhere attending our arms, and the rebel conspiracy is about to crumble to pieces. As well might the Commanding General of a victorious army order his columns to suspend their attack at the moment the enemy's lines are giving way, that a flag of truce might be sent to inquire if it was necessary to continue the battle to obtain a victory. The General who would be guilty of such conduct would be cashiered for cowardice and treachery; and that Government which would ask for, or allow, an armistice, when situated as our Government is would not be entitled to the respect of other nations, nor to the support of its own people. Our cause was never so promising, nor our success more certain than at present. Let the men be hurried to the front to fill our ranks, as they have been for the past few weeks; let public confidence be commensurate with our successes in the field. And finally, let the people, at the proper time, speak in such tones as will guarantee to the soldiers in the field a full and hearty support, and thereby contradict the statements of those who would have us believe that at home we are looked upon as 'marauding hirelings, employed in a war of pillage and subjugation.' Let the public sentiment be the echo of that which is found in the heart of every true soldier in the army, that we are fighting for human rights and liberties, for the preservation of a free people, a free Government, and, having secured these privileges to ourselves, we desire and intend to transmit them unsullied and unimpaired to those who shall come after us in all future time."

Gen. Custer in Newark, N. J.

From the Newark Advertiser, Oct. 24.

Brig.-Gen. GEORGE A. CUSTER, commanding the Third Division of cavalry in Gen. SHERIDAN'S army, was in this city yesterday, the guest of Mr. WILLIAM D. RUSSELL. Gen. CUSTER visited Washington on Saturday, having in charge ten battle-flags captured from the rebels in the battle of Wednesday last, and subsequently came to this city to spend a few hours with his wife, who has been staying here for several days past. He left again for Washington last evening, and will return to his command to-day.

Gen. CUSTER represents that the victory of Wednesday was the most complete and decisive which has been achieved in the Shenandoah. Before the charges of our cavalry the rebel forces were scattered in utter confusion, throwing off everything that could impede their flight. CUSTER'S division pursued the enemy from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 in the evening, driving them into the fields and mountains, capturing whole companies at a time, and putting hundreds of the fugitives hors du combat. Our men fought as they never had fought before, feeling that the annihilation of the enemy depended upon their blows.

"In the early part of the day, however, all the advantages were with EARLY, and had he been content with capturing our guns and eight hundred prisoners and driving our army from its position, his victory would have been one of the most signal of the war. But when he undertook to pursue with the force at his command, he invited the very disaster which befell him. His advance on Tuesday night was made with great secrecy and caution; his men were stripped of their canteens and put in light marching order, and by dawn on Wednesday morning were massed in battle order inside of our lines, with nothing whatever to obstruct their progress on our encampment. Their captures of men and cannon were all effected before sunrise. Letters written by some of EARLY'S officers after his movement commenced, and captured by our forces, expressed fears of the result, characterizing the movement as mad and perilous, and likely to lead to the complete destruction of the enemy in the valley.

The enthusiasm of our men after the defeat of the enemy is described by Gen. CUSTER as magnificent, and their confidence in SHERIDAN is so great that an army one-third larger than ours cannot now stand before them. It is generally believed by our officers that there will be no more serious fighting in the valley, it being impossible for the Richmond authorities to reinforce EARLY'S wasted columns, now scattered in disorder along the lines of retreat.

Gen. CUSTER states that the cannon captured by our forces numbered over fifty; he counted forty-nine at SHERIDAN'S headquarters on Friday night, and several pieces had not yet been brought from the field. Gen. CUSTER'S division captured forty-one pieces and several battle-flags, including the headquarters-flag of Gen. RAMSEUR which bore the inscription, "On to Victory, presented by Mr. W. T. SUTHERLIN." Gen. CUSTER also captured a large number of wagons, with many horses, mules, &c. It is a curious coincidence that the rebel Gen. RAMSEUR who was killed was a classmate of Gen. CUSTER at West Point. Before his death, RAMSEUR sent for the latter, and the two, thus strangely brought together, reviewed in the presence of death, the reminiscences of their cadet life.

Our losses in the fight of Wednesday, as near as had been ascertained when Gen. CUSTER left the front, were about four thousand in killed, wounded and prisoners. The loss of the enemy was some six thousand, and as stragglers are brought in, will probably be found to be greater.

Gen. CUSTER, who, at the outbreak of the war, ranked as First-Lieutenant in the Fifth Regiment Cavalry, and has now probably the stars of a Major-General within his reach, is only twenty-four years of age, and a splendid specimen of the finished soldier. He speaks in the highest terms of our New-Jersey soldiers in the Valley, and especially commends the Third cavalry, which he says have achieved a better reputation considering the time they have been in service, than any regiment in that department."

Presentation of the Captured Flags to the War Department.

From the Washington Star, Oct. 25.

At 11 o'clock this morning, Gen. CUSTER had an interview with the Secretary of War, and said that he had been ordered by Gen. SHERIDAN to turn over to the department the flags captured in the recent battle at Cedar Creek, and to present to the Secretary of War the men who had captured them. The following were the flags presented:

Flag of the Second South Carolina Regiment, captured by Col. GEORGE M. LOVE, One Hundred and Sixteenth New-York Volunteers. Flag of the Thirteenth Virginia Infantry, captured by Sergt. DAVID H. SCOFIELD, Fifth New-York Cavalry. Flag of the Fourteenth Georgia Infantry, captured by Chief Bugler T. M. WELLS, Sixth New-York Cavalry. Flag supposed to be Gen. RAMSEUR'S headquarters flag, captured by JAMES SWEENY, First Vermont Cavalry. Flag of the Eighteenth Georgia Infantry, captured by private ULRICH CROCKER, Sixth Michigan Cavalry. A battle-flag, captured by Capt. EDWARDS, First Vermont Cavalry, entrusted to the care of Corp. JOHN WELCH, Fifth New-York Cavalry, in consideration of the fact that WELCH recaptured from the enemy the flag of the Fifteenth New-Jersey Infantry, which had fallen into the hands of the rebels in their morning attack. A battle-flag captured by Corp. DANIEL P. REIGIE, Eighty-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers. The Secretary inquired of Corp. REIGIE if the staff to which the flag was fastened, and which bore the appearance of having been hastily made, was captured with the flag. The Corporal replying in the negative, the Secretary asked how it happened that the staff was not captured with the colors. "Why, sir," said the Corporal, "he tore the flag off the staff when I came close to him, and I took it away from him." "Did he skedaddle?" inquired the Secretary. "He did, sir," was the prompt response, "and I kept the flag." Flag of the Twelfth North Carolina, captured by Sergt. E. D. WOODBURY, First Vermont Cavalry. The staff upon which this flag was fastened had evidently been a very excellent jointed fishing rod, and admirably subserved the purpose to which it had been applied. A battle flag captured by private IRA HOUGH, Eighth Indiana Infantry. A flag captured by private JEREMIAH PARKS, Ninth New-York Cavalry, a youth not yet eighteen years of age, and who has not yet been in service two months. The Secretary expressed the hope that before the war terminated PARKS would win a Major-General's commission.

SWEENEY, who captured the flag, supposed to belong to the late Gen. RAMSEUR'S headquarters, is not yet eighteen years of age. His explanation to the Secretary of the capture was very amusing—"Me and another one of the boys," (said he,) "saw an ambulance, and ordered it to halt. Says the driver, the General ordered the ambulance to go on." Says I, 'what General?' Says the driver, 'Gen. RAMSEUR.' Says I, 'that is the very man I am looking for." So the other boy and myself took Gen. RAMSEUR, the Surgeon, the ambulance, the driver, and the horses." Gen. CUSTER explained that the boy had on a gray jacket when he made the capture, and had thus misled the driver of Gen. RAMSEUR'S ambulance. The Secretary said that he would like to see the "other boy," who SWEENY stated was Corp. FRED. LYONS, First Vermont Cavalry. Secretary STANTON then returned to these soldiers the thanks of the Department and of the Government for their gallantry in this great and brilliant battle, stating that each of them would be furnished with a medal in commemoration of their bravery; "and," said he, "to show you how good Generals and good men work together, I have already appointed your commanding General (CUSTER) a Major-General. Gen. CUSTER," he continued, taking him by the hand, "a gallant officer always makes gallant soldiers."

This announcement was received with tremendous cheers by the large number of persons who had assembled in the audience room of the department to witness the presentation, while the embarrassed looks of Gen. CUSTER, as he bowed his thanks for the unexpected promotion, showed that his modesty was equal to his courage.

Gen. Butler's Orders.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE ARMY OF THE JAMES.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF VIRGINIA AND NORTH CAROLINA, ARMY OF THE JAMES, BEFORE RICHMOND, Oct. 11, 1864.

SOLDIERS OF THE ARMY OF THE JAMES: The time has come when it is due to you that some word should be said of your deeds.

In accordance with the plan committed to you by the Lieutenant-General commanding the armies, for the first time in the war, fully taking advantage of our facilities of steam marine transportation, you performed a march without parallel in the history of war.

At sunset of the 4th of May, you were threatening the enemy's capital from West Point and the White House, within thirty miles on its eastern side.

Within twenty-four hours, at sunset on the 5th of May, by a march of a hundred and thirty miles, you transported thirty-five thousand men, their luggage, supplies, horses, wagons, and artillery, within fifteen miles of the south-side of Richmond, with such celerity and secrecy, that the enemy were wholly unprepared for your coming, and allowed you, without opposition, to seize the strongest natural position on the continent.

Seizing the enemy's communications between their capital and the South, you held them till the 26th of May.

Meanwhile, your cavalry under Gen. AUGUSTUS V. KAUTZ, cut the Weldon road below Petersburgh twice over, and destroyed a portion of the Danville Railroad; while the colored cavalry, under Col. ROBERT M. WEST, joined you by a march from Williamsburgh across the Chickahominy to Harrison's Landing.

From the 12th to the 16th of May you "moved on the enemy's works around Fort Darling, holding him in check while your cavalry cut the Danville road—capturing his first line of works—repulsing with great slaughter his attack which was intended for your destruction.

Retiring at leisure to your position, you fortified it—repulsing three several attacks of the enemy—until you have made it strong enough to hold itself.

Fortifying City Point, Fort Powhattan, Wilson's Wharf (Fort Pocahontas,) you secured your communications and have practically moved Fortress Monroe as a base within fifteen miles of the rebel capital—there to remain 'till that travels.

Reëmbarking after you had secured your position, with nearly your whole effective strength under Maj.-Gen. WILLIAM F. SMITH, you again appeared at White House within forty-eight hours after you received the order to march—participating at the memorable battle of Coal Harbor with the Army of the Potomac, where the number and character of your gallant dead attest your bravery and conduct.

Again returning in advance of that Army on the 15th of June—under Gen. SMITH the Eighteenth corps captured the right of the line of defences around Petersburgh and nine pieces of artillery, which lines you have since held for three months.

On the 16th of June a portion of the Tenth Corps, under Brig.-Gen. ALFRED H. TERRY, again threw itself upon the enemy's communications between Richmond and Petersburgh, and destroyed miles of the road and holding it cut for days.

The Tenth Corps, on the 14th day of August, passing the James at Deep Bottom, under Major-Gen. DAVID B. BIRNEY, by a series of brilliant charges carried the enemy's works near New-Market, and, two days later, another line of works at Fussell's Mills, defended by the best troops of LEE'S army, bringing back four guns and three battle-flags as trophies of their valor.

Again crossing the James on the 29th of September, with both corps, with celerity, precision, secrecy, and promptness of movement seldom equaled, with both corps in perfect coöperation, you assaulted and carried at the same moment—the Tenth Corps and the Third Division of the Eighteenth Corps, under Gen. BIRNEY—the enemy's strong works with double lines of abatis at Spring Hill, near Newmarket, while the remaining divisions of the Eighteenth Corps, under Maj.-Gen. ED. O. C. WARD, carried by assault Battery Harrison, capturing twenty-two pieces of heavy ordnance, the strongest of the enemy's works around Richmond.

The army thus possessed itself of the outer line of the enemy's works, and advanced to the very gates of Richmond. So vital was your success at Battery Harrison, that on the 1st of October, under the eye of Gen. LEE himself, massing his best troops, the enemy made most determined assaults upon your lines to break it, and were driven back with the loss of seven battle-flags, and the almost annihilation of a brigade (CLINGMAN'S.) After a week's preparation massing all his veteran troops on your right flank, on the 7th of October the enemy drove in the cavalry with the loss of some pieces of horse artillery, but meeting the steady troops of the Tenth Corps, were repulsed with slaughter, losing three Commanders of brigades killed and wounded, and many field and line officers and men killed, wounded, and prisoners.

Such is the glorious record of the army of the James—never beaten in a battle—never repulsed in an assault by a larger portion of its forces than a brigade.

All these triumphs have not been achieved without many loved and honored dead.

Why should we mourn their departure? Their names have passed into history emblazoned on the proud roll of their country's patriot heroes.

Yet we drop a fresh tear for the gallant Gen. H. B. BURNHAM, a devoted soldier leading his brigade to the crest of battery Harrison, where he fell amid the cheers of the victorious charge. In his memory Battery Harrison will be officially designated Fort Burnham.

Of the colored soldiers of the Third Divisions of the Eighteenth and Tenth Corps and the officers who led them, the General-Commanding desires to make special mention.

In the charge on the enemy's works by the colored division of the Eighteenth Corps at Spring Hill, New-Market—better men were never better led—better officers never led better men. With hardly an exception, officers of colored troops have justified the care with which they have been selected. A few more such gallant charges and to command colored troops will be the post of honor in the American armies. The colored soldiers, by coolness, steadiness and determined courage and dash, have silenced every cavil of the doubters of their soldierly capacity and drawn tokens of admiration from their enemies—have brought their late masters even to the consideration of the question whether they will not employ as soldiers the hitherto despised race. Be it so; this war is ended when a musket is in the hands of every able-bodied negro who wishes to use one.

In the present movement, where all have deserved so well, it is almost invidious to name, yet justice requires special gallant acts noticed.

Maj.-Gens. ORD and BIRNEY receive the thanks of the Commanding-General for the prompt celerity of the movement of their corps—both in time and manner, thereby securing thorough coöperation although moving over different lines. Their active promptness cannot be too much commended as an example in other operations. To be able to move troops in exact time is a quality as scarce as it is valuable.

Gen. ORD received a severe wound while directing the occupation of a captured redoubt.

Brig.-Gen. STANNARD is particularly distinguished for his gallantry in leading his division in the assault until he lost his arm. The Commanding-General takes pleasure in recommending Gen. STANNARD to promotion for meritorious services.

First Lieut. C. W. COOK, Twenty-first Connecticut, Acting Aid to Brig.-Gen. STANNARD, has special mention for distinguished gallantry, and is recommended to his Excellency the Governor of Connecticut for promotion.

All Commanders of divisions and brigades acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of the Commanding-General in the fight. The manner of the march of some of their columns can and will be improved.

[Here follows mention of numerous individual instances of gallantry.]

The Commanding-General is quite conscious that in his endeavor to put on record the gallant deeds of the officers and soldiers of the Army of the James, he has almost of necessity, because of the imperfection of reports, omitted many deserving of mention; yet, as these gallant men will on other occasions equally distinguish themselves, they can then take their due place in their country's history.

By command of Major-Gen. BUTLER.

Ninth Congressional District.

An enthusiastic and spirited meeting was held on Monday evening last, at corner of Broadway and Forty-seventh-street, to ratify the nomination of WILLIAM A. DARLING, Esq., for Congress. The large hall was crowded to overflowing with an intelligent and attentive audience, among whom were many ladies. The meeting was called to order by Col. GEORGE B. VAN BRUNT, who nominated HENRY J. HADDEN, Esq. for President of the meeting. Mr. W. E. PABOR then nominated a long list of Vice-Presidents, among whom we noticed the following names: Charles E. Jenkins, Shepard Knapp, Libbeus B. Ward, Solomon L Hull, Christian Schaefer, Amor J. Williamson, Wm. J. O'Bryan, Ira O. Miller, John Gray, Wm. H. Webb, Wm. A. Freeborn, Fred. Kapp, Jacob Vanderpool, Park Godwin, John R. Cecil, Wm. A. Dooley, Jas. Cushing, jr., A. M. Binninger, Malcolm McGregor, H. P. Allen, J. H. Bates, John Sessions, D. E. Gavit, Hugo Wessendonck, Christian Schwartz, Patrick Fitzgerald and Dr. F. A. Thomas.

The President then introduced Hon. E. DELAFIELD SMITH, who read a long series of resolutions indorsing the National and State tickets, and recommending Mr. DARLING, the nominee for Congress, as a worthy, capable and upright man, and eminently fitted to represent the people of the Ninth Congressional District in the next Congress. The resolutions were loudly applauded, and the name of Mr. DARLING was received with enthusiastic cheers.

Col. STEWART L. WOODFORD was then introduced and delivered a most eloquent speech, in which he urged that the maintenance of the old Union in its territorial integrity is essential to the preservation of our national existence. He proved this by showing that successful rebellion would offer overpowering temptation to baffled ambition and defeated minorities, to appeal from the ballot-box to arms in any government that should arise from the ruins of the present one. Upon the preservation of our Union depends the preservation of all the political rights which our Constitution and form of government have hitherto secured to us. We now enjoy free speech, a free press, a free worship, and the unquestioned rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. In the anarchy of disorganized government, these rights would be endangered and eventually lost. The only way to preserve the Union and to preserve these rights is by force of arms.

Col. WOODFORD was frequently applauded during his eloquent speech, and before he had concluded, WM. A. DARLING, the candidate for Congress, entered the room, and was received with great demonstrations of applause, the men cheering and clapping their hands and the ladies waving their handkerchiefs.

Gen. E. W. GANTT, of Arkansas, then delivered a very forcible and argumentative address, after which Mr. DARLING was introduced, and delivered a brief speech, which was received with loud cheers. Rev. W. H. BOOLE and Hon. ABRAM WAKEMAN also addressed the audience briefly. The Glee Club sang several songs during the evening and a brass band discoursed excellent music.

The World Case.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Leonard.

George Opdyke vs. Manton Marble and Others.—Since the motion for a discovery in this case, the complaint has been served, joining Judge Barnard and L. L. M. Barlow as defendants. Certain interrogatories were then propounded to Marble, from which it appeared that Barlow owned one-eighth of the paper. To his answer to these questions, Marble attached his correspondence with plaintiff's counsel on the subject. Plaintiff's counsel appealed to the Court, yesterday morning, for an order striking out this correspondence as irrelevant, and requiring Marble to appear before a referee and testify as to the ownership of the paper. His Honor denied both motions.

Alleged False Imprisonment and Personal Injury.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge McCunn.

Santiago Castro agt. Edward Laffey, impleaded &c. This was an action brought by Castro, a native of the Island of Cuba, against Laffey, proprietor of a seamen's boarding house at 14 Monroe street New-York, and Henry F. Salter, master of the ship America. The action proceeded against Laffey alone, as Salter could not be found.

It was proved, by the testimony of the plaintiff, that he was senior member of the firm of James S. Castro & Co., grocers and ship store dealers No. 8 San Selmo street, West Regulas, in the Island of Cuba. That in January 1863 he took passage at Havana in the steamer Antonia, with some merchandise, on a speculation to Nassau. That 150 miles from Nassau the Antonia was captured as a blockade-runner, and all found on board brought to the city of New-York, in the month of March; at New-York he was discharged, after examination, and taken to Laffey's boarding-house. A few days afterward, finding himself without means, he requested Laffey to find a vessel bound to Havana, and ship him on board, in any capacity so that he might reach his home. Laffey replied by saying that he would do so as soon as possible. On the 11th of March, 1863, Laffey told him he had found the ship America bound to Havana; that the advance wages was $20; and about four o'clock that day took Castro down to the dock and sent him off in a small boat to the America, then lying at anchor in the stream; that on his return to New-York in July he called on Laffey and showed him that he had three fingers frozen off his left hand and two fingers from his right hand, and that as a consequence of sending him away in the America his business in Cuba was broken up.

The plaintiff also proved, by the testimony of Chas. Rybery, of the firm of Rybery, Pentz & Co., shipping agents at No. 89 South-street, New-York, that Castro was shipped through his office to go as seaman on board the ship America to Liverpool, for a voyage which commenced March 13, 1863; that the advance wages for Castro, amounting to fifty-five dollars, were paid to the defendant Laffey; and that the advance wages to Havana at the time were only from twenty-five to thirty dollars, or half as much as to Liverpool.

The plaintiff also offered to prove the following state of facts: That the loss of all the money he had brought with him to New-York, about seven hundred dollars in gold, was the reason of his consenting to go to Havana, before the mast; that as soon as he arrived on board the America he learned she was bound to Liverpool, and he then told the Captain that he had a store near Havana, and wanted to go there to attend to his business; that he had been deceived into the belief that the America was bound there; that he had not agreed to go to Liverpool; nor received any advance wages therefor. To which Salter replied that the plaintiff was on board his ship, and he was determined he should go the voyage; that Salter detained Castro on board the ship, and, to prevent him for leaving, imprisoned him in a stateroom, and kept him there until the ship was outside of Sandy Hook and the tow-boat had left; that the ship was then navigated to Liverpool on a far northerly course, encountering intensely cold weather, and, notwithstanding the remonstrances of the plaintiff, he was compelled to do duty as a seaman throughout the voyage, amidst the inclemency of the weather, and, as a consequence of the exposure to which he was thus unwillingly subjected, he was severely frosted in both his hands, losing three fingers from his left hand and two fingers from his right hand; that on arrival at Liverpool, after twenty-two days' passage, the plaintiff was taken to the hospital, and remained there a considerable length of time, where he had the frozen fingers amputated; that by reason of having been sent so far away from his home by the acts of Laffey, and kept absent a long space of time, Castro's partner sold out the store in Cuba and absconded with $11,000 of Castro's money.

All these offers of proof were ruled out by Judge McCunn.

John McKeon, Esq., counsel for the defendant, then made a motion for a dismissal of the complaint, and after hearing argument against the same by James Ridgeway, for the plaintiff, the Court granted the motion and took the case away from the jury.

Grand Jury.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, TUESDAY, OCT. 25

Judge NELSON having left town, Judge SHIPMAN has come down to hold the Court, and took his seat this morning.

The panel of Grand Jurors was called over. Eighteen of them answered and were sworn in. William Ivison was appointed Foreman, after several others had declined to serve, and the Judge charged them on the matters which are usually brought before them.

No jury business was ready, and the Court adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 26—P. M.

There is an increasing ease to the supply of Money to the Brokers on loan, subject to call at 7 ₩ cent., and exceptional negotiations have been made as cheap as 6 ₩ cent. At the same time lenders are not disposed to buy Merchant paper having over 30 or 60 days to run at higher rates of interest. Where time obligations are taken, the Government Gold bearing Stocks or Treasury Notes or Certificates, have the preference. All these are in improved demand to-day. The new issue of 5-20s are in good request at par, interest to run from 1st November.

The Gold Room opened this morning at 212½@213 ₩ cent., as against 216½@218¾ yesterday forenoon; the break in the market having occurred late on Tuesday afternoon. The business of the day was not especially important in amount. After 12 o'clock the market rallied to 215@216 ₩ cent. There was not much done in Exchange after the Boston steamer's mail of last night. The Hecla, for Liverpool, to-day, took out $100,000 in Gold and Silver.

Speculation on the Stock Exchange is firmer than yesterday, though the bidding is not uniformly active through the Railway or Miscellaneous Share lists. The Western Roads and Philadelphia and Reading are most in request. The advance in Reading was to 127 ₩ cent., buyer 60 days, and 126 ₩ cent. cash. Fort Wayne and Cleveland and Pittsburgh sold at par and 101 respectively, and Rock Island at 96 ₩ cent. The New-York Roads were comparatively neglected, though steadily held. There was a further rise of 8 ₩ cent. on Pacific Mail Shares; sales at 330—the highest point ever reached.

At 4 o'clock, the following quotations were made, as compared with the same hour yesterday, the General Market leaving off firm. Gold, 216¼@216½ ₩ cent.:

The Erie Railway Board of Management, elected at the recent annual meeting of the company, have made Mr. ROBERT H. BERDELL their President, in place of Mr. SAMUEL MARSH, President ad interim after the decease of his nephew, Mr. NATHANIEL MARSH, in July last. Mr. MARSH declined to have the office of President permanently, or that of Vice-President practically, having served the Road sixteen years as Director and Vice-President. Mr. A. L. DIVEN, of Elmira, was made regular Vice-President and Mr. MARSH Honorary Vice-President. The new President, Mr. BERDELL, is a merchant of high standing, and has been identified for five or six years with the Road, as a member of the Direction, and more especially as in active charge of the completion of the Long Dock property in 1859–60.

The falling off on the Export list of Domestic Produce this week is owing, in some measure, it is said, to the want of adequate clerical force in the Statistical Bureau of the Custom-house, to complete the returns of the actual shipments of the week. If this be so, we trust to our new Collector to apply the proper corrective. Another cause of the decrease, however, may be attributable to the light receipts of Wheat and Flour by Canal and of Flour by rail. The Canal is 179,000 bbls. Flour and 1,924,300 bushels Wheat behind last season, to the 14th inst. This was not expected from the results of the new crops in the West. There is a much larger falling off in Corn, but this was anticipated from the deficient crop of last year. The new crop now being gathered is very large in nearly all sections of the West. The comparative deliveries of all Grains at tidewater by the Erie Canal have been as follows, from the opening of navigation to the 14th of October, for the present and previous two years:

Canal opened	1862. May 1.	1863. May 1.	1864. April 30.
Flour, bbls	1,009,600	951,600	772,600
Wheat, bushels	23,717,700	14,315,900	12,391,600
Corn, bushels	17,004,600	19,294,900	8,224,200
Barley, bushels	575,300	1,183,800	1,008,900
Oats, bushels	3,446,700	6,173,900	7,255,900
Rye, bushels	681,700	328,600	382,000

The exports of Petroleum from the United States for ten months of the calendar years 1862-63-64, less one week in October yet to be reported, have been as follows:

The recent discoveries of Petroleum in West Virginia, similar to the Oil wells of Western Pennsylvania, have induced the organization of a number of joint stock Corporations for practically developing this new field for wealth. We know but little personally of their respective merits, but take leave to refer to the prospectus of the Astor Petroleum and Land Association, advertised in this paper, and embracing about 7,000 acres of Oil producing lands in the Counties of Wert and Calhoun, and in the Kanawha Valley in West Virginia. The pamphlet and maps can be had at the office for original subscriptions of Mr. Richards Kingsland, No. 38 Pine street.

Which was adopted.

RESOLUTIONS RESUMED.

Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom, and for his own inscrutable purpose, has called from among the living our late associate, Peter Mitchell, Esq., Alderman of the Eighth District—a man possessed of those sterling qualities that are ever recognized as the index of a nobleness and simplicity of heart and truthfulness of purpose which unfalteringly advance in the path of honor, rectitude and propriety, regardless of the calumnies of detraction, or the flattery of sycophants; and

Whereas, Our late associate was highly distinguished for quality of temper and worth of heart, truthfulness and honesty in action, always governed by the desire to discharge his duties in a manner that seemed best calculated to advance the interests of his fellow men, and wise and provident legislation to serve the cause of society and self-government; and

Whereas, His sudden and unexpected demise has produced a universal feeling of poignant and heartfelt sorrow among all to whom he was known, and particularly among the members of the Common Council and his more immediate associates, the members of this board; it becomes their painful but imperative duty to bear testimony to his worth as a citizen and services as a legislator; therefore

Resolved, That in the death of Ex-Alderman Peter Mitchell, we recognize the truth of the decree "that all men once must die," the good and the great, the unjust and the faithless, the lettered and the unlettered, that this fearful doom none can evade. Let us then hope that when we are called, as he has been called, that our record may meet with the same general approval as that of our deceased and lamented friend.

Resolved, That we truly tender our sincere condolence to the afflicted family of the deceased, not in the emptiness of words, but in the outpouring of nature, that we commend them to the care of the God of the fatherless, who will ever prove their protector and friend.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution be duly attested and presented to the family of the deceased.

Alderman McKnight moved that a Special Committee of five members from each board be appointed to make arrangements to attend the funeral obsequies of the deceased.

Which was carried.

The President subsequently appointed Aldermen McKnight, Shannon, Chipp, Kelly and Jones such committee, on the part of the Board.

MOTIONS.

Alderman McKnight moved that the Board do now adjourn.

Which was lost.

STEAMSHIP LOUISIANA.

At a general meeting of the saloon passengers held on board the National Steam Navigation Company's steamship Louisiana, B. F. Brown, Esq., of Boston, in the Chair, and G. A. Whitehorne, of New-York, as Secretary, the following resolutions were carried by acclamation:

Resolved, That we tender, before separating, our unanimous and most cordial thanks to Capt. Frederick Grogan, for his uniformly kind and courteous bearing on all occasions. Early and late on deck, at short intervals visiting every part of the ship, his conduct has evidenced, in a high degree, the fullest capacity for the important position he so ably fills, inspiring the most unqualified confidence and respect of his passengers; thus making the trip a pleasant recollection of personal intercourse to all on board. The passengers wish him most heartily all success and all happiness.

Resolved, That the subordinate officers, stimulated by his example, have spared no pains to mitigate the many inconveniences incidental to a voyage across the Atlantic at this period of the year; and the passengers' thanks are particularly due to the Purser, Mr. Thomas Train, who has been ever on hand, with kind words, and still kinder action, to promote every scheme to pass the time happily.

Resolved, That the above resolutions be published.

G. A. WHITEHOUSE, Secretary.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The latest intelligence from the Union armies indicates a most cheering and hopeful condition of affairs in every portion of the vast theatre of war. We have no great movement to record; but there are signs that active operations will soon be resumed at different points. Important movements, the nature of which will be made apparent in a short time, are said to be in progress in the valley of the Shenandoah.

Gen. SHERMAN is reported at Gaylesville, near Cook River, pressing hard after Gen. HOOD, who is retreating toward Gadsden. His army is said to be suffering for lack of supplies. Gen. BEAUREGARD has assumed command of the rebel Military Division of the West, and has issued an address to his army, in which he boasts of his ability to drive SHERMAN out of Georgia. He appeals to the people of the surrounding States to give him their support and confidence.

There is nothing of special importance from Gen. GRANT.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Stock Market was firm and on the advance yesterday, and money easy. The Gold Room speculation, after falling to 212½, recovered to 216¼ ℔ cent. Mr. ROBERT H. BERDELL, merchant of this city, has been made President of the Erie Railway Company, in place of the late NATHANIEL MARSH, the President ad interim, Mr. SAMUEL MARSH, declining further service.

Transactions in Produce and Merchandise were on a less extensive scale yesterday. Prices of Breadstuffs, Provisions, Tallow, Whisky, Petroleum, Cotton and Wool, favored buyers early in the day, but closed more firmly. The auction sales of Dry Goods were rather spiritless, only the more desirable fabrics having been competed for any way briskly, and at satisfactory prices. Freights were dull.

A dispatch to the Philadelphia Press, dated Harrisburgh, Oct. 25, states that the figures made up from the published official return, in all the county papers of the State, make the home vote as follows:

Union	197,392
Democratic	197,001
Union majority	391

Forest, official, gives 13 Union. Jefferson gives 202 Democratic. York, 2,808. Adams, 411 Democratic, instead of 365. Fulton 288, instead of 290. Clarion 968, instead 986. Cambria 1,043, instead of 1,070. Westmoreland 1,477, instead of 1,478. The soldiers' vote so far reported at Harrisburgh will make the whole majority in the State approximate 15,000.

The Seventy-ninth New-York Volunteers, in the Ninth Corps, Army of the Potomac, have completed their voting papers and sent them North. There were 107 votes for Mr. LINCOLN and 6 for McCLELLAN.

The Ninth and Sixteenth Ward Unionists had a fine meeting last evening, with good speaking and an abundance of enthusiasm. A mass meeting was also held at headquarters, No. 654 Broadway.

City Inspector BOOLE has replied to Mayor GUNTHER's note suspending him from office in a sharp and defiant epistle. He declares his intention to take no heed of the notification, but to continue on with his duties as heretofore.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the Metropolitan Police District have transmitted to the Board of Supervisors their estimate of the expense of the New York and Brooklyn force for 1865 as follows: General expenses, $77,700; New York Force, $2,218,056 56; Brooklyn Force, $428,842 88; alterations, additions, &c., to New York Station Houses and House of Detention, $22,000; total, $2,746, 599 44.

We publish in another column the places for holding the polls and also for registering the names of voters. The Boards of Registry meet next Tuesday and Wednesday for the last time. See to it that all Union voters are registered.

Two men, named PATRICK COLEMAN and PATRICK CONLAN, were arrested yesterday by Capt. JOURDAN and Officer GOULDER, of the Sixth Precinct, on the charge of having robbed Mr. MARTIN FEELY, who is a member of the Board of Councilmen of the City of Pittsburgh, Penn., of $4,500 in bank bills. Mr. FEELY came to the city for the purpose of buying goods. CONLAN is an acquaintance of his, and on Monday night, these two, accompanied by the prisoner COLEMAN, went out to look at the city. The Councilman stayed at CONLAN's house during the night, and slept in the room with the prisoners. In the morning he awoke to find all his money gone and himself alone in the room. Justice DOWLING committed the accused to the Tombs in default of $5,000 bail each. None of the money has been recovered.

The investigation in the case of JOHN B. MANNING, the Wall-street Broker, who is charged with having passed some of the $100 Treasury notes that were stolen at the time the office of Messrs. BREWSTER, SWEET & Co., of Boston, was entered and robbed, in August last, of $50,000, was continued, yesterday, before Justice DOWLING, at the Tombs Police Court. The testimony taken, went to show that two of the stolen notes were passed by MANNING to certain persons in this city, on the evening of the 8th inst., but thus far the prosecution had failed to show that he had knowledge that the notes in question were a portion of those stolen in Boston. The examination will be resumed this afternoon.

The floating hospital-ship Florence Nightingale, at anchor during the Summer in the lower quarantine, has been brought up to the Erie basin, Brooklyn, the season being sufficiently advanced as to render her further presence there unnecessary.

The Veteran Union Club will hold a meeting at their rooms, No. 710 Broadway, this evening. Capt. GEORGE G. BELLOWS, CYRUS GRIFFEN, Esq., and other eminent speakers will address the assemblage. Returned officers and soldiers are especially invited to be present.

The Special Committee on Retrenchment and Reform of the Board of Aldermen met at 4 o'clock P. M., yesterday, to investigate the Mayor's charges against the City Inspector. Aldermen HARDY and RYERS were present. A number of parties were in attendance to give testimony. The Mayor was not present, but sent word that he would be represented by Ex-Judge WHITING, who, it was stated by Mr. WM. B. RANKIN, was unable to be present, having had but very short notice of the meeting, and desired a postponement. Mr. J. D. WILLIAMSON, on behalf of the Citizens' Association, made a like request, desiring time to prepare evidence. The Committee acceded to the requests, and adjourned to 1 P. M. on Saturday. They are to hold a private meeting in the meantime to decide upon the manner in which the investigation shall be conducted, which will be made known immediately to the counsel of the parties concerned, and to the public on Saturday. The Committee have employed a short-hand writer, and will publish a full account of the investigation in the Corporation papers as rapidly as it progresses.

The trial of Capt. RODMAN's twenty-inch gun, yesterday, at Fort Hamilton, was an entire success. Three shots were fired. At the last discharge the piece was loaded with 100 pounds of powder and a ball weighing 1,080 pounds. The projectile was thrown a distance of about three and a half miles, without the slightest strain to the gun.

WENDELL PHILLIPS spoke last evening at Cooper Institute on the subject of the next Presidential election. The hall was well filled. Rev. Dr. GEORGE B. CHEEVER and other gentlemen spoke, after which the meeting adjourned.

The Fifty-second Regiment New-York Volunteers, Col. FRANK, will arrive to-day from Washington. Three years ago to-day this gallant regiment left the city 1,000 strong; they return with but fifty members, a brave but shattered band. They will have a public reception this afternoon in front of the City Hall, when Judge DALY will deliver the address of welcome.

The editor of the Suffolk Herald desires us to say that his paper never has been a McCLELLAN organ—though the contrary was reported.

Several depositions were taken at St. John relative to the recent Vermont bank robbery, and others were taken yesterday. The prisoners have all easily been identified, and if they are committed, the trial will probably be transferred to Montreal.

A dispatch from Quebec, dated yesterday, says: "The conference is proceeding satisfactorily. The financial questions have been settled. The conference will adjourn this week. All the arrangements will be embodied in a bill to be submitted to the different local Legislatures."

Mr. JAMES O. BENNETT has been nominated as a candidate for Assembly by the Citizens' Association of the Twentieth Ward, Eleventh Assembly District.

McClellan as the Candidate of the Rebellion.

"Let fresh victories crown our arms, and the Peace party, if there be such at the North, can elect its candidate." Such are the words of JEFF. DAVIS to the rebels in his last speech. "Hurrah for McCLELLAN!" Such was the cry from HOOD's soldiers in the late attack upon Resaca. So the arch-rebel invokes fiercer fight to help the Chicago nominee, and so the rebel rank and file shout his name as their battle cry.

Was there ever such a thing before? A traitor summoning his followers to fresh victories in the name of a loyal man, and rebels plunging into the fight with that name for their watch-word. How comes it? Is JEFF. DAVIS repenting? His speeches never contained more emphatic assertion that the Confederacy can and will gain its independence than during his last Southern tour. His reverses, instead of inclining him to submission, have only goaded him to new defiance. There is no change in JEFF. DAVIS that prompts him to hail the prospects of McCLELLAN. He does it without taking one step toward the old flag—nay, he does it when impelling his cohorts to a yet more desperate charge to bring that flag to the dust. There can be but one explanation—it is that what helps the election of the Chicago nominee, helps rebel independence.

What a position for Gen. McCLELLAN! We hear of URAGA and CORTINAS, and other Mexican generals, deserting their flag and going over bodily to the service of the enemies of their country, and stigmatize it as the lowest depth of unsoldierly baseness. But is it? If a soldier is to serve an enemy, is it not a little less unmanly to do it under the flag of the enemy, openly taking all the responsibilities and perils of that service, than under his true flag? There are living officers who testify that when McCLELLAN ordered a retreat from Malvern Hill, whence Richmond might have been taken, to Harrison's Landing, the gallant KEARNY, the very soul of courage and honor, used these words: "I, PHIL. KEARNY, an old soldier, enter my solemn protest against this order for retreat. We ought, instead of retreating, to follow up the enemy and take Richmond. And, in full view of the responsibility of such a declaration, I say to you all, such an order can only be prompted by cowardice or treason." Whether KEARNY was or was not right, we cannot tell. But suppose KEARNY was right, and that, of the two alternatives, treason was the actual cause, would not the crime of McCLELLAN have been one shade lighter had he actually gone from his gunboat, through the smoke of our victorious artillery, into Richmond, and put his sword at Gen. LEE's service?

Gen. McCLELLAN still retains his commission as Major-General in the National Army. He knows, and every man knows, that it is impossible that he should ever again perform in this war one jot of the service incident to that rank. If he is made President, he will be obliged by the Constitution to give up his military commission. If Mr. LINCOLN is made President, Mr. LINCOLN, as a supporter of the war, will be morally disabled from giving active command to an officer who had permitted himself to be thus used by the party opposing the war. Yet in the face of this glaring fact, Gen. McCLELLAN somehow reconciles it with his self-respect to keep his commission. His taking pay for impossible services is but a slight matter. It may, perhaps, become his personal manhood to do that. But we confess that, with the utmost stretch of our imagination, we cannot conceive how, with those national stars on his shoulder, he endures this conjuring up of "fresh victories" in his name by JEFF. DAVIS, the would-be assassin of the nation. If he is the loyal soldier he ought to be, the very thought of this would curdle his blood.

It may be said that the fault is that of his position. But who compelled him into that position? Is he a puppet? Is he a slave? Has he not volition of his own? He occupies the position with his own full consent. He took it willingly, we think we may say gladly, and even though the rebels, through their organs, had distinctly declared how much they hoped from it. And at no time since has he shrunk from it, though every day has afforded new proof that it inspires them with fresh ardor, and is contributing greatly to strengthen and uphold the rebellion. McCLELLAN, in voluntarily standing where he does, personally assumes all the incidents of his position. He makes himself guilty of giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the flag which he professes to serve.

It matters not one rush whether this be his primary motive or not. Nothing is gained for McCLELLAN by saying that his object is to become President, and that he has no desire to help the rebellion. The question is not what the desire is but what the effect is. The fact stands out unmistakably that the rebellion is helped by his effort for political advancement. JEFF. DAVIS himself probably would not have gone into the rebellion could he have become President of the United States. Is that any justification of his crime? How then is it any excuse for McCLELLAN that he would not help the rebellion but for his desire to become President of the United States? What business has he with such unhallowed ambition?

We don't wonder that the soldiers, even those of his old political faith, spurn him with indignation. It is not in a true soldier's nature to have confidence in the favorite of his enemy. Every McCLELLAN shout that comes to him from the rebel lines must set his heart like steel against voting for that man to control the loyal armies of his country. He will no more vote to please rebels than fight to please them. The fact that McCLELLAN calls himself a soldier is to him no inducement for accepting the rebels' choice. His very respect for the uniform makes him all the more repel the man who dishonors it.

New Way to Pay Public Debts.

There is something both touching and instructive in the rapid progress which the rebels are making in knowledge of finance. The state of mind in which the war found them with regard to the art of raising revenue was primitive in the extreme. Most of their newspapers seem to have been possessed with the notion that human nature was to be changed for the special benefit of the Southern Confederacy, and that men would lay aside some of the most prominent characteristics of human nature in order to help the rebellion along. When the public first began—and it began very soon—to give signs of preference for gold over Confederate paper, the wrath of the press was very great, and one Richmond editor gravely urged that anybody detected refusing Confederate notes, or making a discount on them, should be hanged as a traitor.

This sage suggestion was unhappily not adopted; if it had been, we should probably have witnessed the financial collapse much sooner than it really came. The public instructors got over their fury rather rapidly, and instead of threatening the people, who would not take the paper at par, proceeded to publish "appeals" to them. But appeals, of course, gradually lost their power, if they ever had any, and the preachers and hearers have at last fallen back on the plain, naked, unvarnished truth. We have before us an article from the Richmond Enquirer of Oct. 5, which at last makes this acknowledgement:

> "Money has ceased to be a standard of value to the Confederacy. The promissory notes of the Government cannot buy supplies or labor. Great manufacturers hold out such inducements to purchasers who will pay in produce that even the stringent orders of the War Department, forbidding detailed farmers to barter their crops for indispensable machinery, have become powerless. Mechanics refuse to work for anything but provisions. Teachers demand a pittance in eatables, or a small fortune in Treasury notes. Worst of all, Government itself offers an immense premium on all taxes paid in kind, by assessing provisions furnished for that purpose at the highest market rate. It floods the country with certificates of debt."

As to the remedy for this horrible state of things, it asks very piteously:

> "Is Mr. TRENHOLM's policy limited to persuasive advertisements and urgent appeals to the people to favor this loan and take that paper? No one knows better than he does that in finances, above all, there is but one motive that regulates its movements, and that is interest. What we want is not a Sangrado to bleed us to death, but a steward who shall make the most of our estate."

Of course, Mr. TRENHOLM knows all about it perfectly. And we are glad to be able to answer the Enquirer's inquiry, and state that Mr. TRENHOLM's policy is not "limited to persuasive advertisements or urgent appeals." He, as well as the rest of the Confederate community, has given up long ago placing the smallest reliance on persuasion in any shape, and has fallen back on

"The good old rule, the simple plan—
That they should take who have the power,
And they should keep who can."

Having the fullest appreciation of the strength of self-interest in all pecuniary transactions, he seizes everything he can lay hands on; and those who have anything to be seized, do their best to prevent him. In this way the faculties of both the people and the officials are sharpened, and their energies quickened; and we have no doubt that if they keep up this quarrel a little longer, they will both reach such a pitch of "cuteness," that the Yankee peddlers will have to look to their laurels.

STATE SOVEREIGNTY WITH AN ILLUSTRATION.—The last mail from Europe brought us a somewhat pointed and painful illustration of the theory of State Sovereignty, in the case of a commonwealth, venerable by age and illustrious by the antiquity of its dynastic inheritors. The sovereign principality of Lichtenstein, one of the "Powers" of Europe, has ceased to exist in a state of independence. It had a territory of sixty-four square miles. It had a high-spirited population of over seven thousand souls. It had a representative voice in the Federal Diet. It had a guaranteed existence from the Congress of Vienna in 1815. It had the privilege of contributing to the German army a force of ninety full privates and one drummer. But failing in the exercise of this latter privilege, on the technical point of whether the people or the Sovereign should provide for the military items in the budget, a secession feeling arose, and incontinently, the sovereign State of Lichtenstein merged its sovereign existence in that of the Empire of Austria.

Thus one of the earliest examplars of State sovereignty in Europe has ceased to be. Many will hear of the fact not without a pang. The State of Lichtenstein was by no means as large as Georgia; but it struck upon the same fatal rock—that of maintaining a native army—and striking upon that rock, its only remaining hope lay in a formal resignation of the rights and dignities of absolute sovereignty for a cheaper, if not more honorable state of existence.

State Rights.

Those who defend secession as but the assertion of one of the undoubted rights of the States, also oppose the war as destructive of these rights. Their theory seems to be, that there can be no security for local independence, no safety for the small States against the violence or intrigues of the large ones, unless the right of withdrawing from the confederation at pleasure is conceded by the central government. The truth is, however, that there are no more formidable enemies of States' rights than these same Secessionists; no doctrines from which the weak States have so much to fear, as from them.

The theory of the nature of our Government, which converts it into a voluntary alliance of several independent Powers, from which every member can withdraw at pleasure, does not, in reality, afford to any one State one particle more strength or security than can be enjoyed by any small European Power which chooses to make friends with a large one, or with several large ones. The condition of Connecticut or of Delaware, in our own confederation, is very much, according to the States' Rights doctrine, what that of Sweden or Denmark can be whenever either of these Powers succeeds in entering into an alliance with France and England. These great Powers, under such circumstances, would be bound by a moral obligation of the strongest kind, to succor, help and deliver their weaker friends, if menaced, as Denmark has lately been, with destruction; but it is an obligation which they need not fulfill unless they please, and the result is, as we have lately seen, that it may be absolutely worthless when it ought to be of the greatest value. Until, in short, some great change occurs, either in the nature of man, or in the mode of applying the moral law to international obligations, treaties will continue to be held as they are now, the loosest and least sacred of all human contracts. They are notoriously broken, without any sense of wrong or discredit, by all nations, whenever convenience, or policy, or suspicion, or passion, may call for it.

So that—and this is a fact which cannot be too strongly impressed on the public mind—if the Constitution of the United States be simply a compact, and not the organic law of a National Government, armed with power to enforce obedience to its dictates, the sole protection for these "rights," on which the weaker States have to rely, is that on which Denmark or Holland or Turkey has to rely—the mercy, or pity, or good-will, or convenience of the strong. There is something extraordinary in the fatuity of those who maintain that the Constitution is the only safeguard of our liberty, and the only shield of the smaller States against the violence of the larger ones, and yet argue in the same breath that no State is bound to submit to the Constitution one minute longer than it pleases. "The Constitution," says Gov. SEYMOUR to New-England, "is the only thing which protects such little States as you are from conquest or oppression at the hands of Ohio or New-York;" and then he goes on to abuse those who maintain that Ohio or New-York may not throw the Constitution overboard whenever they please. This is very like reassuring a little man, by informing him that the courts and the police would protect him as long as the thieves and assassins chose to submit to them.

If we admit the secessionist doctrine as regards the right of coercion—that is, concede to every State the liberty of withdrawing from the Union at pleasure, by denying that anybody has a right to prevent her—we should like to know in what the value of the Union, as a means of security to the small States, consists. If half a dozen of the Southern States may set up as a Southern Confederacy, whenever they please, breathing out threatenings and slaughter against New-England, and if the Western States may follow their example, and set up a Western Confederacy, and New-York and New-Jersey and Pennsylvania may set up another, whenever the humor seizes them, the benefits which the New-England or any other small States derive from the Union, are somewhat problematical. The very possibility of such a contingency, to say nothing of their actual occurrence, would, if it were recognized as possible, at once force the weak States to rely on the same means of safety as small European Powers,—on alliances with their big neighbors, or on their jealousy of one another, or on the maintenance of small armies, to be lent like that of Sardinia, during the Crimean war, in the hope of receiving a similar favor in return, in case of need. It would, in short, plunge us at once into that struggle of arms and intrigue to maintain "the balance of power," to which most European countries have owed centuries of war, the loss of their liberties and the burden of enormous debts.

In short, unless the Constitution be in reality the "supreme law of the land," not simply a treaty—to be enforced against all insurrectionary combinations, of whatever proportions, by the whole force of the country, the notion that it protects any State or States in the enjoyment of their "rights," is a mockery, a delusion and a snare. The "States' rights" doctrine is utterly inconsistent with the belief that the Union is of any greater value than an ordinary alliance, offensive or defensive, and as such dependent for its continuance on the whims of the parties. If you concede to every man in the community the privilege of disobeying the law at pleasure, he will laugh at you if you remind him of the protection he receives from it. A statute which prohibits violence as long as nobody wants to commit violence, may be a very good specimen of legislation, and entitled to the veneration of posterity; but, certainly, nobody would rely on it to protect him from robbery or murder, or ascribe his safety, as long as he was safe, to its operation.

ASTOUNDING INSOLENCE.—The Copperheaded idea that the soldiers of the Republic will vote for the Chicago platform is a very odd one. That all the degenerate elements of society in civil life should vote for it—that all deserters, skedaddlers, bounty-jumpers, sneaks and malcontents should vote for it—is according to the eternal fitness of things. But that the brave men confronting the enemy should sustain the coward's platform—that the victorious regiments who have borne our flag over half the Southern Confederacy, conquering and to conquer, should vote themselves and their deeds a "failure"—that the army which has the rebellion by the throat should ask JEFF. DAVIS for an armistice—that the host holding high and ultimate convention in the heart of Georgia and in the heart of Virginia should adjourn to jangle about another ultimate convention—were rather anomalous.

Let not the Copperheads insult these gallant and patriotic soldiers by asking their votes. Let them not add insult to injury by saying that they will get them.

DAVIS' PROGRAMME.—The remarkable speech of JEFF. DAVIS, at Columbia, which was published in the TIMES of yesterday, deserves more careful study by those who would comprehend the real feelings and purposes of the rebel leaders at this crisis, than anything heretofore uttered by any other man. Unlike his speech at Macon, it was evidently carefully prepared, and was characterized by a cool desperation the very opposite of the hot and furious passion of his first Georgia speech. The military programme which he announced is the necessary programme of the rebels in the Southwest under their present circumstances. They were to make an incursion northward and assume the offensive, because they must do so. We possess the great strongholds and control the great water-lines of the Southwest, and as it is impossible to drive us from these by direct assault, the only alternative is to try and force their evacuation, by making desperate efforts to strike northward with an army. Hence after asserting that his western army has increased in strength since the fall of Atlanta, that it has risen in tone, that its march is onward and its face to the front, he says that HOOD's eye is now fixed upon a point far beyond that where he was assailed by the enemy; and further on adds, "I believe it is in the power of the men of the Confederacy to plant our banners on the banks of the Ohio, where we may say to the Yankee, 'be quiet, or we shall teach you another lesson.' Within the next thirty days, much is to be done, for upon our success much depends." HOOD and BEAUREGARD are now struggling to carry out this programme, but their success thus far certainly does not hold out much prospect of ultimate success.

DAVIS' political hopes are proclaimed with equal plainness; and his military policy is confessedly intended to forward his immediate political ends. He has adopted the policy of the offensive and of aggression, at this moment, that he may operate upon the Northern mind as regards the Presidential election. He knows that disaster to our arms strengthens the prospect of the Cowards' Platform. He knows he must help to justify the Chicago declaration that the war is a "failure." Hence, in his desperation, he calls upon the rebels in the field to struggle for success, that so the Peace Party of the North may be enabled to elect its candidate.

We think it probable that both the political and the military purpose of JEFF. DAVIS will be utterly blasted before a fortnight.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION.

Nomination of S. P. Gilbert, Esq., in the Fourth District—His Declination.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 19, 1864.

S. P. Gilbert, Esq.;

SIR—As officers of the Fourth Union Congressional Convention it becomes our pleasing duty, under resolution of that body to inform you, that you were unanimously chosen as their nominee to represent this district in the National Councils.

The Convention, impressed with a sense of its duty to the country to present for popular suffrage only such men as have been identified with its efforts to suppress the rebellion, feel especial gratification in offering to the consideration of loyal men a citizen noted alike for the virtues of private and the courtesies of public life. The perilous position of our distracted country at this critical juncture of its history, renders it incumbent on every patriot to exert to the utmost his energies to secure in public positions true men, steadfast in their faith in the perpetuation of the Union and the Government.

Confident in your fidelity to all trusts committed to you, of your abilities to discharge the duties of the office for which you have been nominated; conscious also of your devotion to the dearest interests of our country and its hopes, the convention is gratified in having selected a candidate who will command a most united and unwavering support.

We have the honor to be, with high respect,
PIERRE C. VAN WYCK,
Chairman of the Committee.
D. J. OAKLEY, Secretary.

MR. GILBERT'S RESPONSE AND DECLINATION.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 25, 1864.

Pierre C. Van Wyck, Chairman, and D. J. Oakley, Esq., Secretary:

GENTLEMEN: I have your letter of the 17th inst., tendering to me the nomination of the Union Convention for the office of Representative in the next Congress of the United States, for the Fourth District of this city, at the ensuing election.

I fully appreciate the compliment the gentlemen of the convention have paid me in this nomination; for never in the history of this nation have greater energies and vigilance been required of the representatives of the people than will be demanded of the members of the next Congress.

I have a firm trust in the ability of the Administration to conduct the affairs of the nation successfully, both in the council and in the field; and I look forward to the second term of ABRAHAM LINCOLN with an abiding faith that the dark clouds which now lower over this people will roll away, and be followed by the sunshine of peace—the dawn of a new era of prosperity and happiness. I regret that I cannot permit my name to be put in nomination as your Representative. My health is unequal to the canvass and unequal to the duties of Representative of this city in the Congress of the United States. I beg leave to tender to you, Sir, my thanks for the courteous terms in which you have conveyed to me the wishes of the Convention.

Yours very truly,
S. P. GILBERT.

The New French Minister to this Country.

The Paris Moniteur of the 8th inst., contains a decree by the French Emperor, from which the following articles are taken:

ARTICLE 3.—M. MERCIER, our envoy extraordinary and Minister plenipotentiary to the United States of America, is named embassador to Her Majesty the Queen of Spain, in place of M. BARROT, who is raised to the dignity of a senator.

ART. 7.—The Marquis DE CHATEAUBRIAND, our Minister plenipotentiary to the Prince of Hesse, is named our envoy extraordinary and Minister to the United States of America, in place of M. MERCIER.

Hon. D. S. Dickinson's Speaks.

BINGHAMTON, Tuesday, Oct. 25, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Permit me to say, in general answer to the numerous invitations to address Union meetings in this and other States, and in apology for the encouragement given, that having been prevented for two weeks from speaking, my plans have been thereby deranged, and my expectations disappointed. In resuming, it is the advice and request of the State Committee that I speak in the interior of this State, at places named and published, until the day of election. This arrangement, I regret to say, prevents a response in person to numerous most generous and flattering invitations, at points where I desired to speak, and which, under other circumstances, I should have accepted with alacrity and gratification.

Sincerely yours,
D. S. DICKINSON.

Our Soldiers and Sailors and Thanksgiving.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

President LINCOLN having ordered a General Thanksgiving on the last Thursday of November, it being on the 24th, I have thought it only proper that something should be done for the Army and Navy on that occasion, not only to aid them in keeping the day properly, but to show they are remembered at home. My proposition is to supply the army and navy in Virginia with poultry and pies, or puddings, all cooked, ready for use. This seems to be a big undertaking, but I do not see any difficulty in carrying it out.

My idea is this: there will be about 50,000 turkeys—say of eight pounds each, and 50,000 pies, or their equivalents, required to feed the soldiers and sailors on that day; let, then, every one who could afford and is willing to send and prepare such articles do so, and make up, a barrel or box of them well packed; have them ready for shipment in this city from the 18th to the 20th of November; they can be sent (freight free) to the Army and Navy of the Potomac so as to be distributed the day before Thanksgiving.

It would be a grand sight to see that army of brave men, loyal to the flag, feeding on the good things of the land they have fought for, whilst the miserable traitors, if they still hold out, are crouched behind their defences hungry and starving.

Please ask the loyal newspapers to give this idea circulation, and if it takes I am ready to do my best with others to put it through.

G. W. B.

Little Jersey All Alive for the Union.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 25, 1864.

There was an immense demonstration in favor of the Union, the country and the candidates of liberty, at Princeton, New-Jersey, last night. A large audience was present to hear that distinguished advocate of freedom and constitutional rights, Hon. RICHARD BUSTEED, who, in a speech of unequaled power and eloquence, convinced, persuaded and charmed the inhabitants of this centre of education and intelligence. He was followed by RUFUS F. ANDREWS, Esq., of your city. The occasion was one of great interest, and surely presages the victory which is in store for Governor NEWELL and the Union cause.

The Idea.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Oct. 26, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your correspondent, "A Veteran Observer," in his last letter published in your paper of Tuesday, the 25th, says: "The skies look bright. The nation, I think, is saved. Let it be made a certainty on the Ides of November." He refers, I suppose, to the day of the Presidential election, Nov. 8. Other writers besides your correspondent have spoken of this day as the "Ides of November."

It is a small matter, to be sure, but accuracy, even in the smallest matters, is better than inaccuracy. The "Ides of November" will be Nov. 13, not Nov. 8.

H.

Position of Maj.-Gen. Schofield.

HE DECLARES FOR MR. LINCOLN.

In a speech which he delivered at Frankfort, Illinois, a few days since, Maj.-Gen. SCHOFIELD used this unequivocal language:

"When the war broke out I was in a condition to be of immediate service to that country which had educated me, and to which I owed all I had or could hope to be. I was in the regular army. Many of my associates and I parted company then. Many of them became traitors. For me, my platform was then, ever has been since, and is now, the Union—Undivided Nationality at whatever cost and at all hazards. When I was afterward in command in Missouri, I told the rebels there that the soil of Missouri belonged to the United States and not to Missouri, and though it may become necessary to kill every rebel on that soil, and destroy every dollar's worth of property, of every name and nature thereupon, it must be done, and the soil preserved to the Union to which it belonged. Such was my platform then—such it is now. The Federal Union must be preserved in its integrity. We hear, now-a-days, a great deal said about the Constitution. Let it be revered. Touch it not without good reason. But may not this sacred instrument be changed, if need be, to save the life of a great nation?

We have now at the heads of our armies Generals who are able to command them. At the head of the nation we have a man who has all the while through these stormy seas, steadily, honestly and faithfully held the helm straight on to the shores of Union. The clouds are now breaking and we can see—in the distance, to be sure, but still we can see—through the opening in the clouds, the green shores of peace and Union, whither we are bound. All we want is to keep steadily on. Give our armies the men they need, be united in their support, keep the same honest man, with his firm and steady hand at the helm, and all will be well."

Union Conference Committee in Sixth District.

The Committee of Conference appointed by the Union Conventions of the Sixth District, met last night at No. 654 Broadway. Various propositions were discussed in the endeavor to unite the strength of the Union party upon one of the two candidates in nomination for Representative in Congress from that district, but no method for effecting unity of action was agreed upon. The committee adjourned subject to the call of the Chairman.

HON. EDWARD EVERETT.—Hon. EDWARD EVERETT has accepted the nomination of Elector-at-Large upon the Union ticket, for the State of Massachusetts. The following is his letter:

SUMMER STREET, Sept. 30, 1864.

MY DEAR SIR: I have received your official letter of the 19th, informing me that I was, with entire unanimity, and by acclamation, nominated to the office of Elector at Large of President and Vice-President of the United States, by the Republican Convention assembled at Worcester on the 15th. Having signified in advance my willingness to be placed in nomination, I need only now state that I accept it with thanks to the Convention for this distinguished mark of their confidence.

I remain, dear Sir, with great respect, very truly yours,
EDWARD EVERETT.
Hon. A. H. RICE, President of the Convention.

GEN. WARREN.

His Return to the Army of the Potomac.

NEAR PETERSBURGH, Monday, Oct. 24.

Gen. WARREN has returned and assumed command of the Fifth Corps. Gen. CRAWFORD, who acted as Commander during the absence of the Corps Commander proper, has resumed control of all his division. Immediately after arriving, Gen. WARREN rode along the line, inspecting the fortifications with the critical eye of an engineer.

Weeding Out Supernumeraries.

The Washington Chronicle of yesterday has the following:

"Arrangements are being made to weed out the supernumeraries in this army. They have no care on their minds, nor conquests to make. The object is to make them responsible for a musket and sixty rounds of cartridges, which they will be expected to use the first chance. It is astonishing how many men are absent from their regiments on detached service. They would almost make a division, if gathered together."

THE ISSUES OF THE DAY—WHAT ARE THEY?

An October Scene—Insecurity of Trade—The Final Issue—Slavery—Secession—Battle—Lincoln must be Re-elected.

THE BEECHES, Thursday, Oct. 6, 1864.

The bright light of an October sun has replaced the heavy clouds and falling rain. The deep verdure of Summer still remains, with only here and there a leaf changed. A green tree, seen from my window, is indeed changed, and exhibits the most brilliant and variegated colors, and here and there a maple or dogwood does the same; but they are rare exceptions to the deep mass of living green which the meadows and the hillsides show. I am so great a lover of Nature, that I could almost envy a life in those grand forests of the Mississippi, described by the imagination of CHATEAUBRIAND in his stories of the Natchez. We Americans are getting too fond of cities and factories. We are getting prematurely old. We forget

> "That trade's proud empire hastes to swift decay,
> As ocean sweeps the labored mole away."

Can it not be that this great war is meant to break up, if possible, the universal devotion to trade, and give to some part of the nation, at least, more ennobling ideas? Can the young men who have gone to the battle-field ever forget that there are ideas and emotions far higher and nobler than any which trade supplies?

But, amidst these Autumnal scenes—this magnificent display of nature—I hear the voices of orators, who, in town and country, are calling to political action. The voice of ROBERT BRECKINRIDGE calls from the banks of the Ohio; the voice of the gallant LOGAN is shouting over the prairies of Illinois; and MORTON and CHASE are driving the conspirators of Indiana to their dens. Over the hills of the Hudson, and along the Valley of Genessee, you hear many and familiar orators calling upon the people to decide great and solemn issues. What are they? We should not blink anything. Party cajolery is altogether out of place. The whole destiny and character of the nation is at stake. On what? Apparently on a choice between LINCOLN and McCLELLAN. And certainly it does depend on that. But the men have really little to do with it, except that Mr. LINCOLN has some solid qualifications for the Presiddency, while McCLELLAN has not a conceivable particle of qualification for such a place. The only part he has taken in public affairs is that of a military man, and in that has proved a stupendous failure. That ought to end his canvass. But let that pass. What are the issues before the American people? They are grand, vital, fearful issues, and let no man, whatever his opinions, attempt to cover them with the verbiage and double meanings of party pleaders. Let us state them fairly, and meet them fairly.

The first issue is, shall slavery or freedom prevail on this continent? This is the first issue, because all men are now agreed that slavery was the cause of the war; and, if so, the Union cannot be restored till either slavery is destroyed, or it prevails over the whole continent. I need not ask whether it is right or wrong, or what will become of the negro. Let that be left to moralists and philanthropists. I ask, what is necessary to the freedom and the perpetuity of the Republic. And that is, that slavery shall perish. JOHN STUART MILL, the English philosopher, says: "The skillful and pertinacious resistance which the slaveholders have made only proves how formidable a power of evil they will be, if allowed to establish themselves as a nation." Exactly so. Shall we permit such a demon of evil to grow up in the midst of our nation? Shall we suffer it to strangle and destroy all that is pure and noble in our own country, and then spread over this whole continent, burying deep in dark iniquity the hopes of all hoping nations? Never! It must perish. If an amendment of the Constitution is necessary, we must amend it. It provides for its own amendment, and the most inveterate Conservative cannot object to that. The nation which sustains slavery must die, and the nation which voluntarily sustains it is a pirate, worthy of a pirate's death.

Secondly—Shall the Constitution be so construed that a State may secede from the Union when it pleases? Logically, it may do so, if the construction of State sovereignty put upon the Constitution by the so-called Democratic party is to prevail. I know very well that the tenth section of the first article of the Constitution prohibits all State sovereignty, and that no such thing exists. I know that the old articles of Confederation, made in July, 1778, declares the "Union shall be perpetual." I know that JAMES MADISON wrote long letters to explain away his 1798 resolutions. But what will all this avail me, if the majority of the people put in power men who construe the Constitution as JEFFERSON DAVIS does? What will be the worth of my opinion, or even of JAMES MADISON, or of any words of the Constitution, if the rights of the States are to be construed to include the power of secession, and disunion? Alas! nothing. A Constitution is not what it says, but what the Administration of the Government construes it to be. Hence, if the people want Union and Freedom, they must put men in the Administration who construe the Constitution to mean Union and Liberty. And will that be GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, in the hands of VALLANDIGHAM, and VORHEES, and WOOD, and JEFFERSON DAVIS? Everybody knows McCLELLAN is a weak man. Can he be anything more than a tool in the hands of these men? Let the question of secession be decided by the people. The "Constitution as it is" can never be restored. It was construed by PIERCE, BUCHANAN, and DAVIS, and FLOYD, to mean secession and slavery. That kind of Constitution can never be again. Let us meet this issue at once and kill secession dead.

The third issue is the ISSUE OF BATTLE. Shall we conquer, or surrender? All idea of peace with the rebels, without conquest, is moonshine. There is nobody to make peace. Our Constitution has given no power to treat with an insurrection. Neither President or Congress are empowered by the Constitution to treat any part of the people in arms against the Government, as anything but an insurrection. If the President attempts to negotiate with the rebels, it is an usurpation. He has no such power; and DAVIS says, as testified by both JACQUES and BENJAMIN, that he has no power to negotiate, and would not if he could. Yet right in the face of the Constitution, and of the repeated declaration of the rebel Government, the Chicago Convention demands a "cessation of hostilities," and by that convention was McCLELLAN nominated, and on that declaration he stands. What he says about carrying on the war is mere stuff. Can he carry on the war with the Chicago Convention about him? Hear the Richmond Examiner, of Sept. 8: "Every defeat of LINCOLN's forces, even holding them at bay, insures to the advantage of McCLELLAN, or rather to that of the dexterous manipulators in whose hands he is a puppet, and accumulates for them the desired capital." How well they understood his character. A puppet in the hands of dexterous manipulators. And who are these manipulators? The agent of the ROTHSCHILDS—a fine leader for the Democratic party. A broker and Jew takes the place of JEFFERSON and MADISON. Oh! Democracy, hast thou come to this! A crier of "O'clos" to lead the Democracy, and a General who staid months in front of wooden guns at Manasses, for a candidate! But we must take things as they are.

Shall we surrender? In the very hour of victory, when perfect and overwhelming success is at our door, shall we go back? We must go back if we elect McCLELLAN. He is a puppet in the hands of his manipulators. Who shouted loudest for McCLELLAN when he was nominated? The rebel army! Do you doubt it? Then ask the soldiers and officers from the front. They are the proper witnesses of that. There is unquestionably a correspondence between the rebels at Richmond and their Copperhead friends. The whole thing is perfectly understood. The last and only hope of the rebels is just what the Chicago Convention asks, "a cessation of hostilities," and if McCLELLAN is elected, they expect that, at his hands, as much as they expect the sun to rise! Is it not awful to think of, that any political party in this country can give encouragement to rebels? That the defeat of our arms is success to them! And, as Mayor GUNTHER truly says of a large part of the party, "they cannot rejoice in the victories of their country!" I thank Heaven there is no prospect of their success, but rather that the victory of the ballot-box shall consign them to an infamy as lasting as it is deserved.

Such are the great and solemn issues of the day. Let us meet them like men who are fighting the battles of ages, for all that is dear in the memory of the past, and all that is hoped in the anticipated glory of the future. Let LINCOLN be reëlected, not by a bare majority, but by an overwhelming force of public opinion. Let the war be continued till the last rebel has laid down his arms and slavery and secession be consigned to the bottomless pit of perdition. Then the Republican Empire will rise to a grandeur unknown in the world. Then will freedom prevail. Then will posterity rise up and bless the generation which saved the nation and saved the hopes of mankind.

A VETERAN OBSERVER.

Amusements.

BROOKLYN ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Our friends in Brooklyn have an unusual musical treat in store for to-night. Mr. MARETZEK's company will perform in the Montague-street house the tragic opera of "Il Polluto." This fine work has created a genuine sensation in New-York. It is admirably rendered by Mme. ZUCCHI, Signor MASSIMILIANI and Signor BELLINI. These artists indeed have never been heard to such advantage.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—It would be difficult to find a better sample of the modern domestic drama of Germany than that furnished in the piece called "Fanchon," now being played at this establishment. Of the value of that drama—which, having few teachers and no followers, can hardly be called a school—we can say nothing; but in briefly glancing at its elements, we cannot refrain from acknowledging that there is at least some significance in a movement which resolutely discards the sensation theories of the day and supplies their place with something human. The Germans have borrowed from the French as largely as we have done, but they would seem to have wearied of the practice. Their best dramatists now obtain the material of their plays from a simple source of nature, and although it may not be the kind of nature that is most interesting to us, it is yet better than the horrid vagaries to which their stage was so long—and ours still is—a prey. A German play—to speak generally—consists of a slight rustic story, with one strongly marked eccentric character, a great deal of love, a little superstition, and a single grain of the feeblest fun—the latter warranted not to explode. The lesson inculcated is always a kindly one; the sympathy it excites is for the oppressed of fortune and faith; the warning it utters is to beware of prejudice; the corollary—be just and virtuous and you will be happy. This, of course, is nothing more than what is usually included under the generic name of poetic justice. It is the duty of all art to teach the same lesson, but the new generation of German writers teach it somewhat differently to their predecessors. Instead of the giddy follies of city life, they give us the quiet intensities of rustic isolation,—seeking truth where wells may yet be found, and not where sinks only prevail. All absolute returns to nature are beneficial. They are seldom in vain; but as in life we find the quiet of the farm-house somewhat tame after the gaieties of the saloon, so in the drama the peasant is apt to be dull when he takes the place of the peer; but the change is none the less heedful, healthful and good.

The plot of "Fanchon" is exceedingly slight. It eludes analysis, yet the play is long and interesting. There is, in fact, but one character—the heroine whose names gives the title to the play. Fanchon is surrounded by picturesque scenes and encompassed by trying situations. She is an outcast—the god-daughter of a witch, and suspected of an inheritance of the black art. The peasants throw stones at her, and she retaliates with her tongue, which is hardly less damaging. In this way she becomes isolated. As hoydenhood changes to maidenhood, the warmer impulses of a true nature become manifest. The contempt of the world distresses her. She feels that she is misunderstood, and yearns for some one who can read her aright. The effort to find this some one gives us the story of the play; the rebuffs, generally cruel, and always exhibiting the senseless cruelty of prejudice, are its most touching incidents. In the end Fanchon is, of course, triumphant. She marries the proudest and richest youth of the village.

Miss MAGGIE MITCHELL, who plays the leading character, is a little lady of extraordinary vitality. Her lightness of foot and activity of body are wonderful. By nature, too, she has a charming voice, and an eminently emotional disposition, both of which enable her to impart the prettiest sort of pathos to almost every womanly suggestion of sensibility. In the more vehement passages of the play she lacks power, and in the last act, repose. She is, in fact, nothing but the "Cricket" who hops about in a most extraordinary way, and is amusing mainly from excess of activity. Whatever the cause, she is certainly amusing. We know of no actress who could render the part so adequately. The merits of the performance are unquestionable. For this reason we shall not hesitate to speak of its defects. Prominent among these is the habit of using the nose as an organ of speech. In pointed passages of the dialogue. Miss MAGGIE MITCHELL condescends to the most vulgar of colloquial style. There is nothing in the text to indicate that Fanchon was acquainted with the Bowery, or that she habitually slept in a bunk, or was addicted to running with the machine, yet her enunciation is that of a sloggy-jawed, broken nose Mose. It raised a laugh, and being intended for that purpose, was an unworthy artifice. In this instance, and in subsequent instances, there was a marked tendency to over-do the thing. Whenever, in short, Miss MITCHELL seemed to think she ought to act she was bad, and whenever this impression did not overwhelm her, she was good. Nothing could be more quaint than her shadow-dance of the second act, or more touching than her subsequent explanation of it. There were personal inspirations, but elsewhere any one could see that her general acting idea of the character was borrowed. The "low-like gambols" of Topsy were to be witnessed in every scene where extravagant eccentricity had a chance of displaying itself. Hence while accepting the merits of the representation we cannot recognize them as the results of art. Miss MITCHELL has remarkable qualifications, but they have not been improved by the "starring" experience of the past three years. With a little self-discipline she can readily deserve the position which she has already obtained, and this, whilst it will secure it to her forever, will also entitle her to the almost unqualified praise of the critic. At present the favor which she enjoys is the fickle thing of an hour and of one piece.

"Fanchon" has been placed upon the stage in a creditable manner. It is generally well acted—the only exception being Mrs. FARREN, (Old Fadet,) whose sepulchral tones were ridiculous, and whose general style is unmeritorious and intolerable.

WINTER GARDEN.—Mr. J. S. CLARKE, who for the last few months has been filling the air with pleasantness and making the loud laughter of the town hold both its sides, suddenly essayed last night a part which called into exercise far different, higher and more delicate functions of his art. Most of the great comedians have been fond of stepping across the line which divides comedy and tragedy. Mr BURTON was especially so, and cherished to the last the gay delusion, of which frequent failures in such raids could not wholly disenchant him, that tragedy and not comedy was his forte. The critics of olden time differed widely as to whether GARRICK was greatest as a comedian or tragedian; and if Mr. CLARKE play other parts with the same power and pathos he exhibited last night, those of our day will find a similar difficulty of decision with regard to him. Mr. CLARKE has shown that highest attribute of art, the power to keep an audience moving between a smile and a tear. His warmest admirers were surprised by the depth and beauty of his pathos in the character of Robert Tyke. The difficulty of finding an artist with the genius to embody, even tolerably, a character like Tyke, blending tragedy and comedy, and abounding in contrasts, more than to its quaint old-fashioned character and stiffness of movement, is due to the fact that the "School of Reform" is now so seldom played, unless an artist like Mr. CLARKE starts it from its slumber. It belongs rather to the closet than to the stage. EMERY it was whose genius first gave life to this creation, and in this country the character derived its best and only real illustration from the late LYSANDER THOMPSON, with whose name it has been since associated. We doubt, however, whether either of these great artists ever carried out the conception of MORTON with greater fidelity or power, or blended earnestness and deviltry with happier effect. Mr. CLARKE's earlier scenes were marked by all that mixture of boldness and cunning which belonged to that ruffian school of stable followers and cock-fighters of the time in which this comedy is laid. His make up was a study, and he seemed to infuse into every movement and look—into his whole being—the spirit of low villainy, as in Toodles, he does the spirit of drunkenness. In no other character has he exhibited so strongly that plastic sensibility which is the gift of nature, and which enables the actor to live and feel himself the person he represents during the whole scene. The drama abounds in striking situations. Indeed they are too thickly clustered with each other, and in some instances are unnatural and forced. The happiest is in the equivoque scene between Tyke and Ferment, which is worked up with great spirit and ingenuity. Nothing could be finer than CLARKE's start of conscious guilt when Ferment says "I apprehend you." It was in the subsequent scenes, however, where some of the most powerful passions of the heart have to be portrayed, that the audience found their greatest surprise. Even Mr. CLARKE's most enthusiastic admirers could hardly have been prepared for the wonderful power, which, in the closing scene of the first act with Lord Avondale, and in that in which he discovers that it is his father he has robbed, held the audience breathless and harrowed with emotion. The stage has not seen for a long time a more appalling picture than that in which CLARKE, after the description of his father's supposed death, falls senseless to the ground. The contrast, too, in the last act, when Tyke becomes the joyous rustic once more, was, like the gay music after a funeral, bright and cheerful. We have rarely seen a more complete and admirable representation. The audience was most enthusiastic, summoning Mr. CLARKE before the curtain at the close of every act. For the rest, Mrs. CHANFRAU was a pleasing Mrs. Ferment, and Mr. CHESTER, as Lord Avondale, acted with good judgment. A considerable sprinkling of the liquid from which the character derives its title would have been of service to Mr. ANDREWS, who played Admiral Turragon. He was dull and flat. The stage management was slow, and delayed the movement of a piece sufficiently cumbrous of itself. Mr. CLARKE's Tyke was a genuine artistic triumph, and will hold the boards, we presume, for many nights to come.

BRADY'S "MERCURY" STORIES."

NOLL DARKER;
OR,
THE GHOST OF BLACK ALLEY.

BY DR. J. H. ROBINSON.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY DARLEY.

PRICE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Those who have read "Good-for-Nothing Dick," "Scotto the Scout," "Cepherine," and other popular tales from the pen of the same celebrated author, need no word of commendation of this new tale to induce them to hail its appearance with extreme delight. Suffice it to say, that "NOLL DARKER" is a romance of the first-class, and is a worthy predecessor of the series of brilliant tales by the best writers of the age, which will characterize the series known favorably as the "Mercury Stories."

MANHATTAN
UNION
CLUB.

Educated young men, upon you it rests to prove that our Republican form of Government is not a failure.

If you do not take an active part in its management, its success cannot be expected.

The Manhattan Union Club offers you an opportunity, free from the objections which have hitherto deterred many.

We have no party connections, nor have our members any political aspirations, but we desire to serve our country.

A meeting of the Executive Committee will be held at the club room, No. 5 Clinton Hall, this THURSDAY EVENING, the 27th inst., at 8 o'clock, to receive new members, and distribute campaign documents.

To all acquainted with the Oil Region of Western Pennsylvania the name of this company, as indicating its locality, is significant of the great value of its properties.

There is no better Oil Territory.

It embraces interests in fee, and in more than twenty productive wells, and in twelve others now rapidly approaching completion; while the further development of its large unimproved area will at an early day greatly increase its product.

We offer it as a permanent dividend-paying investment.

A limited amount of this stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $50 per share, being ONE-HALF of its par value.

The declared dividend for the month is one per cent. on its entire capital, to which purchasers within the month will be entitled.

The advertiser, a stockholder in the above-named road, fully aware of its real value, which is not shown by its present market price, wishes to meet with some of those who have like interests, and consult upon a subject of importance to us as stockholders. With a surplus on hand of $294,000 on the 1st of January, with earnings since that show an increase fully justifying a dividend upon the common stock—with the market price of all classes of its bonds far below those of other roads whose earnings are less than those of this road—with agents who so represent every accident upon the road as to depreciate the value of our stock, let us who are its owners, take some united action upon the subject.

PROPOSALS.

ARMY SUPPLIES—BEEF CATTLE.

OFFICE OF ASSISTANT COMMISSARY-GENERAL OF SUBSISTENCE, No. 4 STATE-ST.,
NEW-YORK, Oct. 19, 1864.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the undersigned at this office until 12 o'clock M., on THURSDAY, the 27th instant, for supplying BEEF CATTLE for the use of the United States Army, to be delivered at the WASHINGTON DROVE YARDS, New-York City, or at some other convenient point in, or in the near vicinity of the City of New-York, to be designated by the undersigned, and in such number as may from time to time be required, not exceeding one thousand head in any calendar month from the 1st of November, 1864, to the 1st of February, 1865; notice to be given to the contractor on Saturday of each week, on his application at this office, of the number of cattle he shall be required to deliver during the following week.

As the cattle will be required for shipment, none but first quality of oxen or steers, entirely free from all blemishes or imperfections, and not less than three years old, will be received; and no lot of cattle the average gross weight of which is not as high as twelve hundred and seventy-five pounds, nor any bullock of less gross weight than twelve hundred pounds. The exact gross weight of each bullock to be ascertained by the scales; time of weighing to be determined by the Inspector on the part of the United States, Mr. George Starr, whose certificate of inspection, stating the number of cattle delivered, their weight, &c., will constitute the voucher, on presentation of which the accounts will be paid, when funds are in hand for the purpose. Each proposal, to be entertained, must have a printed copy of this advertisement posted at its head, and be in the following form:

"I, A— B—, of the city or town of ——, county of ——, State of ——, hereby propose to deliver to the Subsistence Department of the United States Army, at the Washington Drove Yards, New-York city, or other point in or near said city, to be designated, such number of Beef Cattle, not exceeding one thousand head in any calendar month, of the quality, condition, &c., described in the advertisement above posted, as I may from time to time be required to furnish on due notification, at —— cents per pound gross weight."

To be subscribed by two responsible sureties, as follows:

"We, the undersigned, hereby agree that should the above bid be accepted we will give our bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars that the contract shall be fulfilled.
"———.
"———."

Payment, as heretofore, to be made in such funds as may be furnished by the United States.

The ability of the sureties to respond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, must be certified by the U. S. District Attorney or other proper officer; such certificate to accompany the proposal.

Proposals to be indorsed "Proposals for Beef Cattle." The right exists with the United States to reject any or all the bids that shall not be regarded as satisfactory. All bidders to be present at the opening.
H. F. CLARKE,
Colonel, A. D. C. and A. C. G. S.

ARMY SUPPLIES.

OFFICE OF ASSISTANT COMMISSARY-GENERAL OF SUBSISTENCE, No. 4 STATE-ST.,
NEW-YORK, Oct. 24, 1864.

Sealed proposals, in duplicate, will be received by the undersigned until 4 o'clock, P. M. on FRIDAY, the 28th instant, for supplying, for the use of the United States Army, SUBSISTENCE STORES, to be delivered in New-York or Brooklyn, as follows, viz:

POTATOES—Such quantities as may be required during the month of November, 1864, 60 pounds to the bushel, in good ordinary well-coopered barrels.

ONIONS—Such quantities as may be required during the month of November, 1864, 60 pounds to the bushel, in barrels as above.

A printed copy of this advertisement must be attached to each proposal, and the proposals must be specific in complying precisely with all the terms. Each bid, to have consideration, must contain the written guarantee of two responsible names, as follows:

"We, the undersigned, hereby guarantee that should all or any part of the above bid be accepted, it shall be duly fulfilled according to its true purport and conditions; also, that a written contract, with bonds to the amount of one-fourth the value of the stores proposed to be furnished, shall be executed, if required."

The seller's name, place of business and the date of purchase, as well as the name of contents, with weight, gross and tare, and shipping marks to be hereafter designated, must be plainly marked on every package. All other old marks must be obliterated.

All the stores will be carefully inspected before their delivery, and compared with the retained samples. Returns of weights, signed by a professional Public Weigher, must be furnished whenever required.

Payment, as heretofore, to be made in such funds as may be furnished by the United States.

Contractors are expected to hold their goods, without expense to the United States, until required for shipment.

Blanks for proposals will be furnished at this office, which must be inclosed in an envelope addressed to the undersigned, and indorsed "Proposals for Subsistence Stores."

Parties offering ambulances must distinctly state in their bids the number they propose to furnish, the price and time of delivery, and must guarantee that the ambulance shall be, in every respect, equal to army standard; otherwise the proposal will not be considered.

A guaranty, signed by two responsible persons, must accompany each bid, guaranteeing that the bidder will supply the ambulances awarded to him under his proposal.

Bids will be opened on Tuesday, Nov. 1, 1864, at 12 o'clock M., at this office, and bidders are requested to be present.

Awards will be made on Wednesday, Nov. 2, 1864.

Bonds will be required that the contract will be faithfully fulfilled.

Telegrams relating to proposals will not be noticed.

Blank forms of proposals, contracts and bonds may be obtained at this office.

The right to reject any bid deemed unreasonable is reserved.

Indorse envelope "Proposals for Ambulances," and address
Col. WM. M. McKIM,
Chief Quartermaster Cincinnati Depot.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE COAL LAND,

On George's Creek, Allegany County, Maryland, containing about 100 ACRES OF "THE BIG VEIN."

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Alleghany County, as a Court of Equity, in a case wherein William M. F. Magraw and others are complainants and Wm. Beall and others are defendants, for the resale of the lands therein described for the payment of the balance of the purchase money on the sale of said lands heretofore sold to the purchaser, under the original decree, and remaining due and unpaid under the original sale, I will sell at public sale, at the St. Nicholas Hotel, in the City of Cumberland, on THURSDAY, the 3d of November, at 11 o'clock A. M., all that tract of land lying on George's Creek, in Alleghany County, Md., called "MT. CLARE," sometimes called "Mt. Hope," patented by the State of Maryland to Jesse Tomlinson, deceased, and containing 119¾ acres, more or less. This tract of land is one of the most valuable in the coal region for the number of acres, and contains about 100 acres of the large vein of coal, and lies adjacent to the lands of the American Coal Company. It is about the last of the "Big Vein" in George's Creek known to be for sale. The coal is accessible at small cost, and the title unquestionable.

TERMS OF SALE—as prescribed by the decree:—One-third cash on the day of sale, and the balance in two equal installments at one and two years from the day of sale—the deferred payments to bear interest from the day of sale, and to be secured by bonds of the purchaser, with surety or sureties to be approved by the Trustee, or cash to be paid on the day of sale.

Upon payment of the purchase money in full, a good and sufficient deed will be executed to the purchaser, he paying stamps and cost of deed.

THOMAS I. McKAIG, Trustee.

THE GREATEST DRAMATIC TRIUMPH of the season achieved by Mr. J. S. CLARKE.
AS
ROBERT TYKE.

The management desires to call special attention to this magnificent piece of character acting, which on Tuesday evening created

AN ENTHUSIASM UNPARALLELED
in theatrical experience in New-York.
THE INTENSITY OF FEELING,
GRAPHIC CHARACTERIZATION, and DEPTH AND BEAUTY OF PATHOS, exhibited by Mr. Clark in his picture of Robert Tyke, entitle it to rank among the most cherished of the dramatic art. At the close of each act he was called before the curtain to receive the enthusiastic homage of an audience between whom and the character he represented he had established at the commencement, and maintained to the close of the play, an unbroken link of sympathy and interest.
MASTER PIECES

TO-NIGHT
he will appear again in the character of
ROBERT TYKE,
in Morton's great Comedy of
THE SCHOOL OF REFORM, and also in his intensely funny rôle of
PAUL PATENT,
in the lively Farce of LOVE IN LIVERY,
received nightly with shouts of laughter and delight.

MEDICAL.

A BLESSING TO EVERY WOMAN.

The only specific known to be always safe, healthy and certain for removing obstructions or irregularities of nature, from whatever cause, and bring on the monthly sickness, is the wonderful and infallible

PORTUGUESE FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

Price $3 and $5. Sold by Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, sole agent for the United States, office No. 129 Liberty-st., or sent by return mail in letter envelope.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 61 Franklin-st., near Broadway, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and at less expense than any other can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD, No. 61 Franklin-st. Call, send, or write.

CAUTION TO MARRIED AND SINGLE LADIES.—DR. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, deems it his duty to caution ladies, that his scientific mode of treatment in all cases of irregularity or suppression, is the only one at once healthy and certain in all cases, however complicated. He is consulted with the strictest confidence.

DR. A. M. MAURICEAU is the author of "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health and circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family; a perusal of which will convince any lady of his thorough knowledge of her complaints. Every lady who has it is secure from danger and imposition. Price $1. Sold at No. 1 Vesey-st., No. 18 Ann-st.; also, at his office, No. 129 Liberty-st., or sent by mail, by addressing Box No. 1,224 New-York City.

MANHOOD AND THE VIGOR OF YOUTH regained in three days by Dr. POWERS' ESSENCE OF LIFE. This wonderful agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitution, radically curing Seminal Weakness, Sexual Debility, and Impediments to marriage generally; Nervousness, Mental and Physical Incapacity, resulting from self-abuse, &c. The time required to cure the most inveterate case is one week. Failure is impossible. This life-restoring remedy should be taken by all about to marry, as its effects are permanent. Young man, are you subject to that soul and body destroying disease, secret habits? Dr. POWERS' Invigorating Essence is a never-failing cure. Sold by WALTER POWERS, M. D., No. 61 Franklin-st., between Broadway and Elm-st., New-York.

AFFLICTED RESTORED—IGNORANCE EXPOSED—FALLACIES UNMASKED.—Highly important to both sexes, married or single, in health or disease. Dr. LARMONT'S Paris, London and New-York Medical Adviser and Marriage Guide. 8oth edition 400 pages, nearly 100 anatomical illustrations—upon debility, affections of the bladder and kidneys, sexual diseases, European hospital practice, the author's unequaled Paris and London treatment, &c. All should purchase this original work of the publisher, E. WARNER, No. 1 Vesey-st., for $1 50, or consult the doctor, No. 173 Broadway, up-stairs, New-York, from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. "We concur with other papers in recommending Dr. Larmont and his work."—Courrier des Etats Unis, German die Reform, Dispatch, Staats Zeitung, Atlas, Medical Review.

DR. POWERS' PERIODICAL DROPS are designed for both married and single ladies, and are the very best thing known for the purpose, as they will bring on the monthly sickness in case of obstruction from any cause, and after all other remedies of the kind have been tried in vain. Expressly for obstinate cases. Warranted as represented in every respect, or the price will be refunded. ☞ Beware of imitations! Purchase directly of Dr. POWERS, 61 Franklin-st. N. Y.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL VIEW OF MARRIAGE—Containing nearly 300 pages, and 150 fine plates and engravings of the anatomy of the sexual organs, in a state of health and disease, with a treatise on self-abuse, its deplorable consequences upon the mind and body, with the author's plan of treatment—the only rational and successful mode of cure, as shown by the report of cases treated. A truthful adviser to the married and those contemplating marriage, who entertain doubts of their physical condition. Sent, free of postage, to any address on receipt of 25 cents, in specie or postage-stamps. Address Dr. LA CROIX, No. 31 Maiden-lane, Albany, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MARRIED LADIES, who require a safe and certain remedy for removing obstructions, from whatever cause. Can rely upon the celebrated INFALLIBLE FRENCH FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS. No. 1, price $1 a box, to restore the monthly sickness in forty-eight hours, if of short standing; but obstinate cases, of long standing, may require No. 2, which are four degrees stronger than No. 1, and can never fail, are safe and healthy, price $5 a box. Sold at No. 127½ Liberty-st., and 162 Chambers-st., or sent by mail, with full instructions, address Box 2,359 N. Y. P. O.

MANUFACTORY AND MERCHANDISE.—FOR SALE a business in successful prosecution for the past 25 years, located in New-York. It is in all respects desirable for parties with the requisite capital and capacity, and can be conducted with as little risk and means as any business of the same magnitude. Stock will be sold at cost and lease assigned. The present owners retire.

VAN WINKLE & WINANS,
No. 132 Broadway.

EDWARD H. DIXON, M. D., EDITOR OF the SCALPEL, attends exclusively to operative surgery and the more obscure diseases of the pelvic viscera, stricture, hernia, hemorrhoids, varicocele and fistula. No. 42 5th-av., between 10th and 11th sts. Office hours from 8 to 9, 1 to 3, and 7 to 9 evenings

HUNDREDS ARE RUINED BEYOND REDEMPTION in this life by not calling on Dr. HUNTER at first; he has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has cured no less than fifty thousand cases. His remedies are mild and there is no interruption to business or change of diet. Dr. Hunter is in constant attendance from 8 in the morning till 9 at night, at his old office, No. 3 Division-st., New-York City, since 1834. Charges moderate and a cure guaranteed. Separate rooms, so that the patient sees no one but the Doctor himself. His wonderful medical discovery known as Dr. Hunter's Red Drops, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, and possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. One dollar will secure by return mail his medical work, 300 pages, 40 colored pictures. Worth all the others put together.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC—ITALIAN OPERA.

Director ... MAX MARETZEK
LAST NIGHT OF IL POLIUTO.

A CARD.—The Director takes this occasion to announce that next week will be the last of the Fall season of Opera, and inasmuch as the time named will be occupied by the production of Mozart's grandest work, DON GIOVANNI, in matchless style, and the debut of Mrs. JENNIE VAN ZANDT in RIGOLETTO, it will be impossible to give another representation, after that of to-morrow evening, of the POLIUTO.

Therefore no lover of the lyric drama should fail to improve the present opportunity for enjoying the admirable performance of CAROZZI-ZUCCHI in this opera—the equal of Grisi as a singer and of Ristori as an actress—and to hear the magnificent vocalization of MASSIMILIANI, who, according to all the leading critics, is incomparably the finest Polyutus ever heard here, not excepting such of his predecessors in the character as Brignoli, Musiani and Mazzoleni.

The Academy of Music will remain closed during election week, after which the regular winter season of Opera will be commenced. Among other novelties then to be offered is Donizetta's remarkable Opera, never yet produced in America, DON SEBASTIANO, which will be presented with a superb cast and brilliant mise en scene.

MUSICAL.

CHICKERING & SONS

MANUFACTURERS OF GRAND, SQUARE, AND UPRIGHT PIANO-FORTES, No. 652 BROADWAY.—The superiority of these instruments has of late been amply demonstrated by the voluntary testimony of the foremost artists of the day, who claim for them excellencies of tone and workmanship hitherto unobtained by any other makers.

Mr. GOTTSCHALK'S constant use of the NEW SCALE CHICKERING GRAND PIANO-FORTES has severely tested their musical qualities, and resulted in establishing the justice of the very flattering estimation in which they are held.

Messrs. CHICKERING & SONS are Sole Agents for the celebrated Alexandre Organs for the United States.

CABINET PIANOS AT SCHARFENBERG & LUIS,

WORCESTER'S HINGED PLATE

PIANO FORTES are recommended by Gottschalk Mason, Berge, Fradel, and others, as possessing double the volume of tone and musical quality of pianos of a corresponding scale made upon the ordinary plan. Warerooms corner 14th-st. and 3d-av., N. Y.

STEINWAY & SON

GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS are now considered the best in Europe as well as this country, having received the first Prize Medal at the World's Exhibition in London, 1862.

The principal reason why the Steinway Pianos are superior to all others, is, that the firm is composed of five practical pianoforte makers, (father and four sons,) who invent all their own improvements, and under whose personal supervision every part of the instrument is manufactured. Warerooms, Nos. 71 and 73 East 14th-st., between Union-square and Irving-place, New-York.

THE BATTLE OF CEDAR CREEK.

Division Cavalry had lost several horses, and officers and men were nearly exhausted; several other batteries were similarly situated. The Third Division of Cavalry was at once sent to the right; the Nineteenth Corps was also massed there; the Sixth remained in the centre, and the portion of the Eighth remaining on the field was placed on the left of the pike, flanked by Merritt's cavalry division, and the offensive was at once taken. Desperate was the struggle, and many a gallant spirit yielded up his life in the patriotic work on that field; but humanity was benefited by the sacrifice—civilization and republican institutions received another prop. The enemy pressed the right; the Nineteenth was massed in a piece of woods, ready for the struggle. The crisis, as it appeared to every one, had arrived, when it was to be decided whether or no the Army of the Middle Military Division—hitherto successful—should be disgracefully defeated and compelled to fall back to Winchester discomfited by the rebels under Early. The enemy pressed forward, and were met with several deadly volleys from the Nineteenth; the men behaved gallantly. Gen. Sheridan was with them to give encouragement by his presence. They fired several deadly volleys into the ranks of the enemy, killing them by scores. The advance was made by the whole line; the tide was turned, victory still was within our grasp. In a brief space of time despondency and despair disappeared and the army advanced. Merritt, on the left, with the Michigan Brigade and Second Massachusetts Cavalry, charged Kershaw's division; a repulse did not dishearten the men; again, they charged and drove Kershaw's division five miles across the creek and up the sides of Massanuttin Mountain, and held the position. Here it was that Col. Lowell, commanding brigade, in a charge made with the Second Massachusetts Cavalry, received his death-wound. At an early hour in the forenoon, he received a shot through the right arm and breast, (flesh wound,) which knocked him insensible to the ground; but upon rallying he thanked God that his life had been spared, referring feelingly to his wife, but refused to go to the rear, when urged to do so by those around him.

THE FINAL ADVANCE AND VICTORY.

Just as the sun was setting behind Little North Mountain in the western sky, Custer, who, since the arrival of Gen. Sheridan, was authorized to act according to his judgment in any emergency, seemed to realize that the hour of triumph had arrived, and by one single dash opened the way for the final success attained. The Nineteenth Corps had forced the left of the rebel infantry back, and was steadily advancing; the Sixth in the centre and Eighth on the left pressing forward with the general movement. At this moment Rosser's rebel cavalry, who had been driven back several times, again threatened our right flank, when Custer sent Col. Pennington, commanding First Brigade, to drive him back with the Second Ohio Cavalry, Lieut.-Col. Purington, First Connecticut, Capt. French, and Second New-York, Major Hull, with Pierce's (Second United States) battery. Rosser was forced to retire precipitately across Cedar Creek at Cupp's Mill, about three miles westerly from the Strasburgh pike; and here Gen. Custer, young as he is, displayed judgment worthy of a Napoleon. With his whole command he threatened Rosser; Pierce's battery fired vigorously, and the advance cavalry used their carbines freely. It was a critical moment. Our infantry was advancing, and Merritt had driven the enemy on the left; a rebel battery near where army headquarters were located in the morning, was a tempting prize; Custer considered a moment, as if in doubt, whether to force through Rosser's command and attempt to capture prisoners and artillery across the creek in their retreat, or to capture the battery near headquarters, or effect a crossing between Rosser and the main column. The question was partially solved by the battery referred to falling back. Custer, quick as thought, withdrew all of his force from Cupp's Ford, except the First Connecticut, and ordered his whole command to move toward the creek as rapidly as possible, and at the same time the First Connecticut received orders to make a formidable demonstration to hold Rosser, in which the regiment was entirely unsuccessful. Custer, with his practical eye, saw at a glance that the important moment for a dash had arrived. Hastily calling in his command he started with the First Vermont Cavalry, Col. Wells, and Fifth New-York Cavalry, Major Krom,—the balance of the command, except the First Connecticut, following as closely as possible. With this small command he pushed through a rocky ravine, striking Cedar Creek at a blind ford, but little more than one-fourth of a mile west of the pike. Custer and Wells at the head, crossed with the First Vermont, and Major Krom with the Fifth New-York, following. At a distance of less than half a mile from the Creek, Pegram's infantry was found drawn up behind a stone wall to receive them. Skirmishers were hastily deployed from the First Vermont; the Fifth New-York in column, by squadrons, formed on the left. The rebel artillery could be heard rumbling over the pike—it was too great a prize to be lost. "Charge! Charge!" fairly screeched out Custer, and the small but gallant band did charge successfully, dispersing the enemy and not stopping for prisoners. On the command dashed, striking the pike about one mile south of Cedar Creek. It was now dark, but at a glance it was seen the pike was full of artillery, horses, men, and wagons. Col. Wells dashed forward to beyond Strasburgh, cutting off by this movement forty-five pieces of artillery, ambulances, wagons, caissons, horses, soldiers, &c., &c. The soldiers surrendered quietly generally, and only asked to have their lives spared—so much does conscience haunt even the poor traitors in the ranks of the rebel army. The scene that followed must be imagined, for it cannot be pictured in the mind of the reader. As I have said before, the Michigan brigade, Col. Kipp, had forced Kershaw's command across the river on the left, capturing many prisoners, and in fact dispersing the command. Devin's brigade—a portion of it was a detached service—the First New-York, a portion of the Sixth and Twenty-ninth New-York, pursued the enemy directly up the pike; but the rapid movement of Custer gave him the advance, and his command, or rather the First Vermont and Fifth New-York, captured a majority of the guns. Merritt's division captured several battle-flags, seven or eight pieces of artillery and a large number of prisoners. Custer's division recaptured a flag belonging to the Fifteenth New-Jersey Infantry, which was taken in the morning, and also several battle-flags and prisoners. The First Vermont alone captured more prisoners than there are men in the regiment. The infantry moved forward to the Creek, when they were ordered to occupy the same ground as they did the night before. A glorious victory had been achieved under the most adverse circumstances. Cheers upon cheers made the welkin ring, as the troops reoccupied their camps again. The tents and camp equipage of the Nineteenth and Eighth Corps were, of course, gone, and dead bodies of comrades and rebels were stumbled over in the dark; but victory had perched upon their banners and there was a general rejoicing. The troops were duly notified at a later hour of the captures made, and as the glad tidings were announced in the different brigades, again the wild huzzas were heard in turn throughout the whole corps; and although the men had fought all day, without scarcely a mouthful to eat—the rebels not having the good manners to wait for them to get breakfast—and many a companion had fallen, still, while lamenting the dead, all were joyous, and even contented to sleep without blankets or other covering in the cold night air, for a victory had crowned their labors.

The cavalry kept up the pursuit to Tom's Brook, six miles south of Strasburgh, when men as well as horses gave out and rested for the night. This morning I rode over the whole extent of the battle ground. And while having cause to mourn the death of many personal friends, at the same time I feel that they have not yielded up their lives in vain. Bidwell, Lowell, Thorburn, Taylor and others—personal acquaintances, have fallen: but the people will honor their memories. Gen. Bidwell, a few minutes before receiving his mortal wound from a piece of shell, was cheerful and hopeful of the final success of the Union cause, and was ready to sacrifice his life in case fate willed it. Capt. Taylor, in command of the Sixty-first Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteers, was also one of Nature's noblemen. He died as he had lived, a true patriot. As he was moving into position where he received his death wound through the body, grasping my hand he uttered a brief farewell, and in ten minutes afterward had fallen—another victim of the fiends in human shape who are at the head of this rebellion. For a few moments he conversed with those about him, gave directions to have his body immediately interred on the field, and words for his dear wife and children, and expired. He was buried as requested, so that the rebel fiends would not despoil his body. Col. Thorburn fell just in the edge of Middleburgh, while attempting to rally his men in the morning. He belonged to the First Virginia Volunteers, and commanded the First Division of the Eighth Corps. Lieut. W. B. Ross, acting Adjutant of the Fourteenth New-Jersey Volunteers, was killed near the pike, a short distance north of Middleburgh, and was interred near the spot where he fell. Riding up to ascertain his name, a shell struck almost in the centre of a group of twenty persons standing around his body, but fortunately it did not explode.

The pike from Cedar Creek to Fisher's Hill, or Round Top, is strewn with the debris of the rebel command. Here a wagon, there a dead traitor or a horse. Guns and accoutrements are to be seen on either hand. Several thousands have already been collected, but more remain on the roadside. The original Bull Run skedaddle did not begin to compare with the panic that existed in Early's command after nightfall. The men, generally, when they found our cavalry were in pursuit, threw away their arms, and fled in every direction. Many fled across the Shenandoah to Massanutten Mountain, where hundreds of them have been picked up to-day by detachments of cavalry.

It is worthy of remark that since Gen. Sheridan has been in this department he has made an average capture of two guns per day, enough muskets, wagons and accoutrements to supply a corps, horses enough to mount a division, cows enough to supply New-York City with milk, and destroyed enough to sustain the whole rebel army three months.

E. A. PAUL.

A Ripe Old Age.—Prof. Chester Dewey, D. D., of Rochester, reached the advanced age of 80 years on Tuesday last. Prof. Dewey graduated at Williams College in 1806, and was tutor and professor in that institution from 1808 to 1827. In the latter year he took charge of the Berkshire Gymnasium in Pittsfield, Mass., which was for many years a celebrated and successful school for boys. In 1836 he removed to Rochester, and was principal of the Collegiate Institute there until 1850, since which time he has filled the chair of chemistry and the natural sciences in the University of Rochester. During most of the period from his graduation until 1850 he was professor and lecturer on chemistry and botany in the Medical College at Pittsfield, and for a part of the time in the medical school of Woodstock, Vt. Prof. Dewey retains his faculties of mind and body in a remarkable degree, and is in better health now than for some time past. His eightieth birthday was made the occasion of a family gathering and the offering of the congratulations of many of his fellow-citizens. Thousands of Prof. Dewey's pupils, scattered over the whole Union, will hear with pleasure of the vigor and health which attends his advanced age. During the past year some of Prof. Dewey's college pupils have presented to the Alumni Hall of Williams College a fine portrait of their former instructor. The donors of this portrait were Hon. E. C. Benedict and Hon. D. D. Field, of New-York; Hon. Emory Washburn, Hon. Homer Bartlett, Judge Charles A. Dewey and Rev. Dr. Orville Dewey, of Massachusetts; Hon. A. C. Paige, of Schenectady; and Rev. Dr. E. P. Swift, of Pennsylvania.

THE LARGEST GUN IN THE WORLD.

Successful Trial of the Twenty-Inch Rodman Gun at Fort Hamilton.

The grand test of the twenty-inch Rodman gun at Fort Hamilton yesterday proved to be an entire success. At the hour announced, 12 o'clock, for the first loading of the heaviest piece of ordnance in the world, the parapets of the Fort were thronged with distinguished officers and ladies and gentlemen all anxious to witness the trial of the great gun. Considerable delay was experienced in the proper adjustment of the piece, as it was not until half past two o'clock the first discharge, a blank cartridge, of one hundred pounds of powder was fired. The concussion following the discharge was slight, and the recoil of the gun much less than was anticipated. The piece was next loaded with a charge of fifty pounds of powder and a thousand pound shell. The time taken in loading was about half an hour. The second trial was as successful as the first, the ball, in consequence of considerable depression of the gun, striking the water at a quarter of a mile distance recocheting several times. The gun, on examination, being found to have received no strain, preparations were made for the final test. At 5 o'clock the piece was again loaded with a charge of one hundred pounds of powder and a ball weighing one thousand and eighty pounds—one of the largest ordnance projectiles ever cast. Owing to the rather impromptu arrangements for raising the ball, it was found to be anything but an easy task to adjust it. However, at the hour mentioned, the piece was loaded, and everybody stood clear for the last grand trial. The gun was raised to an elevation of twenty-five degrees, and the discharge was deafening. The ball was twenty-four seconds in the air, and fell at the distance of about three miles and a half. Considerable applause followed the final shot, and all concerned in the management of the piece were warmly congratulated. The following are the dimensions of this last great achievement of Capt. Rodman: Weight of gun, 116,497 pounds; length, 21 feet; bore, 20 inches; usual charge of powder, 100 pounds; average weight of ball, 1,000 pounds. Previous to the trial of the gun, the revenue cutter Bronx. Capt. Marcel, arrived at the Government dock, having on board a large number of ladies and gentlemen. Prominent among the latter were Gen. Dix, Gen. Hays, Gen. Dyer, Gen. Smith, Commodore Paulding, Commodore Wise, Commodore Rodgers, Maj. Van Fleet, Capt. Rodman and Peter Cooper. During the afternoon an elegant collation was served on board the cutter, and to the music of the Fort Hamilton Band the guests joined in a dance on the deck.

The City Inspector and the Mayor.

A DEFIANT RESPONSE.

The following is City Inspector Boole's reply to the order of Mayor Gunther, suspending the former from office:

City Inspector's Department,
New-York, Oct. 25, 1864.

C. Godfrey Gunther, Mayor, &c.:

Sir: I have received a note from you, dated the 22d instant, whereby you undertake to suspend me from the office of City Inspector, together with certain charges upon which you assume to base your action. Your unremitting persecution of me as a public officer is difficult to explain. To be sure, at the last canvass for the office which you now hold, and which, in the general opinion of the public and the press, you eminently disgrace, I was your opponent for the suffrages of the people, and you received a majority. According to well-established usages between rival candidates, the excitements, the feelings and passions, if any existed during the campaign, terminated as I supposed, shortly after the result. Such, so far as you were concerned, was certainly the case with myself. But you, forgetful or ignorant of the ordinary courtesies observable in such relations, concluded, it seems, to act far differently. Even before you are installed into office, you prepared yourself, to persecute your rival by secret and unworthy means, and, by what dishonorable means I know not, created an espionage over this department, and, to subserve your base ends, secured in your interests one of my subordinates, on whose treacherous statements you communicated to the Common Council charges against me, of which, heedless of the commonest courtesy, you did not first give me any information, or opportunity to refute or explain.

This last act on your part is not only an outrage upon me, but a wilful violation of your duty, and of the City Charter, for which you ought to be impeached and removed from office. In any matter within your cognizance, where the Charter of the city or the laws confer upon the Mayor power or jurisdiction over this Department or its head, I shall be ready and zealous to give assent and govern my action accordingly; but when, in derogation and in defiance of the laws you assume powers you do not possess, and which—according to the published letter of James R. Whiting—you have admitted you knew you did not possess, I defy your malignity, laugh at this miserable exhibition of your acknowledged impotency, and hold you up to public scorn.

So far as the continuance in the performance of the duties of my office is concerned, I propose to take no more heed of your notice of suspension than the community has of your theory that "patriotism is enlightened self interest," or of your practical patriotism, exhibited in your veto of resolutions of the Common Council, authorizing the city to be illuminated in commemoration of the brilliant victories recently achieved by the gallant armies of the nation.

F. I. A. BOOLE, City Inspector.

A Pittsburgh Official Robbed of $4,500.

Two Men Arrested Charged with the Theft.—Patrick Coleman and Patrick Conlon, of this city, were arrested yesterday by Capt. Jourdan and Officer Golden, of the Sixth Precinct, on the charge of having robbed Martin Feely, a Councilman of the city of Pittsburgh, Pa. It seems that Mr Feely was in this city for the purpose of purchasing goods. On Monday night last he took a stroll around town, with $4,500 in bills, on various banks of the city of Pittsburgh, in his pockets. Conlon, who is an acquaintance of Mr. Feely, took him to his residence, where he staid during the night. Coleman accompanied them, and the three slept in one bed,—Councilman Feely, as the testimony shows, was placed in the middle. In the morning the latter was awakened by some one fumbling over his clothes, when he discovered Coleman's hand in his pocket. An examination of the pockets showed that the sum of $4,500 was gone. Both Conlin and Coleman ran away as soon as Feely discovered them in the act of stealing. When the prisoners were brought before Justice Dowling they were committed to the Tombs in default of $5,000 bail each, for trial. None of the money was recovered.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

The $50,000 Robbery in Boston—Further Examination in the Case of Manning, the Wall-street Broker.—Yesterday the examination in the case of John B. Manning, the Wall-street broker, who is charged with passing some of the $100 bills stolen from Messrs. Brewster, Sweet & Co., of Boston, in August last, was continued before Justice Dowling at the Tombs Police Court. Mr. Thomas R. McNeill, keeping a restaurant at No. 203 Washington-street, was examined. He testified that Mr. Manning, or a man in his company, called at his place on the evening of the 8th inst., and presented a $100 Treasury-note, and asked witness to give him small bills for it. Witness said he would do so if the bill was all right, and afterward he changed the note. Andrew F. Heiser, bartender in the saloon of Alexander Matthews, No. 222 Greenwich-street was examined and testified that on the evening of the 8th inst., a man whom he identified as Mr. Manning, came into the bar-room, and asked him to change a $100 Treasury note. Not having the money witness referred him to Thomas H. Corwin, also employed on the premises. Corwin soon after gave Manning the change for the $100 note. It was subsequently discovered that the names on this note had been erased. The investigation will be continued to-day.

Robbed by his Room-mate.—Wm. J. Marsby, an Englishman, aged 29 years, was arrested by Officer Lane, of the Fourth Precinct, on the charge of having stolen $230 in bank bills from his room-mate, Alfred F. Etheridge, of No. 56 Catharine-street. It is alleged that the accused was the only person who had access to the room, and that he knew where the missing money was kept. Etheridge was absent from the city at the time the theft was committed. Justice Dowling locked the accused in the Tombs to await his trial.

Stabbed Dangerously in an Affray.—At 3 o'clock yesterday morning a party of friends, among whom was John Glynn, residing at No. 39 Monroe-street, and Patrick Riley, of the same street, became involved in a quarrel near Glynn's residence. During the altercation Glynn was dangerously stabbed in the left side with a knife, alleged to have been in the hands of Riley. The latter escaped, and is still at large. Glynn was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

An Alleged Highwayman in Custody.—Officer Barker, of the Fifteenth Precinct, made the arrest yesterday of Charles O. Brockway, alias Brooks alias Williams, a young man who was indicted for robbery some time since, and now rearrested on a bench warrant. It is stated that the prisoner had drugged a man named John Broughton, residing at No. 306 Mott-street, and robbed him of $1,700. The accused was committed for trial by the District Attorney.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

Conviction of Manslaughter.—Robert Grinlinton, tried in the Kings County Court of Sessions on the charge of killing Thomas McGrath in a fight by stabbing, on the evening of the 25th of July last, was yesterday convicted of manslaughter in the third degree. The prisoner was remanded for sentence.

Naturalization in Brooklyn.—The City Court will remain open from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. each day until Saturday next, the 29th inst., for the purpose of issuing naturalization papers. Thus far 1,200 persons have been naturalized, of whom 750 were granted on the ticket of the Chairman of the regular Democratic Committee of Kings County.

Dannville, Penn., June 2, 1862.

Dr. Wm. R. Gregg—Dear Sir: In February, 1861, I was afflicted with sugar diabetes, and for five months I passed more than two gallons of water in twenty-four hours. I was obliged to get up as often as ten or twelve times during the night, and in the five months I lost about fifty pounds in weight. During the month of July, 1861, I procured two bottles of Constitution Water, and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured, soon after regaining my usual good health. Yours truly,

J. V. L. DEWITT.

ASTOR BURNING SPRING
PETROLEUM LAND ASSOCIATION,
TO BE INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

CAPITAL..........$2,000,000
100,000 Shares, at $20 Each.

Subscription price for the remaining 20,000 shares for full-paid stock, free from all assessments, $8 per share—being less than one-half of its par value; 10,000 shares are reserved to pay expenses of the Association. The property secured for the company consists of about 7,000 acres, all in fee. There is between sixty and seventy miles of this property on rivers, runs and creeks, of the best boring territory. It is located mostly on the celebrated Rathbone Burning Spring Tract, on the Little Kanawha River, Wirt and Calhoun Counties, Virginia, about twenty-four miles from Parkersburgh, and seven miles from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. A charter has been granted for a branch road, and laid out directly through the lands of this Association, which it is expected will be completed in a very short time, which will give a direct communication to all the Eastern cities, as well as the Ohio River, by the railroad.

Numerous applications have already been made for leasing lots on this tract, and it is confidently believed by reliable persons that have returned, after making a thorough examination of the property, who are ready to give all information that may be wanted in regard to the same, that it can be made to yield an income to the association in ninety days after its organization of from five to ten per cent. per month on the investments from the cash bonusses, for leases of lots and royalty alone, without the expenditure of one dollar by the company. Lead ore, coal and timber of the finest quality, in immense quantities, are also on these lands. The attention of capitalists to this enterprise is solicited, as a first-class investment at price offered. The organization of the company is deferred until the stock subscription is completed. No money to be paid until the Shareholders' Committee are satisfied with the property, when a meeting of subscribers will be called for the purpose of electing their own officers. Books of subscription, giving full particulars, are now open at the office of

CHERRY RUN
PETROLEUM COMPANY.

CAPITAL..........$500,000.
250,000 SHARES—PAR VALUE, $2 00.

The interests and lands of this Company are in the very heart of the oil territory of Venango County, Penn., and have been selected with great care. They have an interest in the following wells: Dearbone, Button Wood, Fallet, Auburn, Fee and Railroad Well, now pumping and flowing sufficient to insure a dividend of 4 per cent. a month on the investment at once.

A limited amount can be subscribed for, free from all assessments, at the office of the undersigned, at ONE DOLLAR PER SHARE, BEING ONE-HALF OF ITS PAR VALUE.

OIL CREEK
PETROLEUM COMPANY.

CAPITAL..........$1,000,000
PAR VALUE $20 PER SHARE.
$40,000.

Have been paid to shareholders in dividends for August. September and October will pay 3 per cent. a month on investment from the product of three wells now working. They have five wells now nearly done, expected to be completed in the next thirty days, which it is confidently believed will enable them to pay 5 to 6 per cent. monthly dividends. Nine engines and all necessary tools, &c., &c., are now on the ground, belonging to the Company. They now offer to sell a limited number of shares, that were reserved for working capital, to enable them to develop at once all their property. This stock can be obtained solely of the undersigned at $10 per share, free from any assessment, being the subscription price, AND ONLY ONE-HALF ITS PAR VALUE.

COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE

Does not exhilarate and excite the patient sufferer like alcoholic bitters and beverages, all advertised to cure dyspepsia, but it is a medicine most wonderfully adapted to all diseases of the stomach and bowels.

COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE

Will relieve distress from food or purify a foul stomach in less time than it takes to write this line.

COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE

Has no equal in the world as a remedial agent. There is not a preparation now known that is as certain, speedy and infallible in its action—relieving and curing at once. We say this, positively.

COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE

Is prepared by the originator of the justly celebrated Coe's Cough Balsam. Mr. Coe has never prepared a medicinal article for public and general use but what has stood the strongest tests, and has always borne the palm of victory over every disease it has been certified to cure.

Will you who are suffering from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nausea, Heartburn, Sick-Headache, Cramp and Pains in the Stomach and Bowels, Acidity of the Stomach, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and General Debility and weakness of the whole system, try but a single bottle, we will never urge you again, if we fail in this case. Our own knowledge of its merits, the united testimony of all who have ever tried it, the encomiums of hundreds of our own neighbors, your duty to yourself, and the beneficial result, as certain as the sunshine, all earnestly persistently, urge you to just try one bottle. If what we say is not correct, if our statements concerning its wonderful virtues are not found to be true, if you do not say that the operation of the medicine is instantaneous and perfectly wonderful, we will renounce our profession as caterers to the public health, and retire from the field, admitting that we are incompetent to compound a medicinal preparation which would be entitled to your confidence.

THE GREAT FEMALE REMEDY.

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS cure all complaints incident to the sex, and remove all obstructions of nature, from whatever cause, producing health, vigor and strength.

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS are better than all pills, powders and nostrums; being a fluid preparation their action is direct and positive, and it needs nothing but good common sense to see and understand the reason why they cure all those ills to which the female system is subjected, with dispatch and a degree of certainty which nothing but a scientifically compounded fluid preparation could reach. They are, in the most obstinate cases,

RELIABLE, AND SURE TO DO GOOD
RELIABLE, AND SURE TO DO GOOD!
AND CANNOT DO HARM,
AND CANNOT DO HARM,
To the most delicate constitutions.

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS will certainly produce the regular return of nature, if taken a day or two before the expected period, and it is a maxim in the profession, that prevention is better than cure.

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS have been used by over twenty-five thousand ladies, within the past six months, and the testimony of all is, "It surely cures."

CAUTION!!! CAUTION!!!

Bear in mind that I guarantee my DROPS TO CURE Suppression of the Menses, from whatever cause, though care should be taken to ascertain if pregnancy be the cause, as these DROPS would be sure to produce miscarriage, if taken whilst in that situation, and all are cautioned against using them, as I wish it distinctly understood that I do not hold myself responsible when used under such circumstances.

TO MARRIED LADIES

They are peculiarly adapted, as they bring the monthly period with such perfect regularity.

I could furnish any quantity of testimonials of its efficacy from my own patients, but the practice of parading bought and fictitious ones before the public is so prevalent, that I do not deem it advisable.

Do not suffer from these irregularities when an investment of one dollar in Lyon's Periodical Drops will regulate and restore nature to its healthy course; and by those who have other preparations, which they desire to palm off upon the strength of the popularity of my Drops. But when the druggist you apply to has not got them, either make him buy them for you, or else inclose one dollar to the nearest general wholesale agent, who will return you a bottle by return express.

DO NOT BE IMPOSED UPON!
DO NOT BE IMPOSED UPON!

See that the name of Jno. L. Lyon is written upon the directions which are wrapped around each bottle. None others are genuine. Therefore, beware of counterfeits. They are for sale by every druggist in city and country, at one dollar ($1) per bottle. If you wish relief, take no other.
